Beer Bottles Short

REGINA (CP) — Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines said today that because of the continued shortage of bottles it would be impossible for breweries to provide 18 bottles of beer next month for holders of ration books in Saskatchewan. Earlier the Provincial Liquor Board had held out hope the ration could be raised for July from the current 15 bottles a month.

Perry said when he called Sept. 1 for his money the package could not be found.

Say King to Run In Glengarry, Ont.

OTTAWA (CP)—Reports circulated in political circles here today that Prime Minister King has decided to accept the offer of Dr. W. B. MacDiarmid, Liberal member-elect, to vacate the Ottawa district riding of Glengarry to give Mr. King a seat in the Commons.

These reports said nomination day for the by-election would be July 30, with the voting, if necessary, Aug. 6.

Weather Hampers Search for Plane

Low-lying rain-loaded clouds today hampered aerial search for the twin-engined R.C.A.F. Dakota transport missing since Tuesday with three aboard while on a flight from Tofino to Comox. Western Air Command officials say the plane is believed to have been in the Nanaimo area when it disappeared.

50 Wartime Houses For Servicemen To Be Built Here

Victoria's application to Wartime Housing Ltd. for the construction of 50 homes for veterans has been approved, according to word received by the City Council today. Acting Mayor Ed. Williams also received a telegram from Thomas Gray, general manager of Wartime Housing Ltd., in answer to his telegram sent Wednesday.

"The city is ready to go ahead the minute the agreement and the plans are ready," Acting Mayor Williams said, "and there is no reason for any further delay in the start of the housing project."

E. J. Stevens, a Wartime Housing official, Vancouver, has been instructed to come to Victoria to look over the lots to be provided by the city and supply Wartime Housing headquarters with plans and descriptions so that the drafting department will be able to make a plot plan to be incorporated in the agreement.

Ald. T. W. Hawkins, chairman of the city council housing committee, said that the committee has picked out just over 100 lots in the northeast section of the city, from which the Wartime Housing officials will be able to pick 50.

Under the draft agreement these lots will be sold to Wartime Housing for $1, and after the houses are built the city will receive $24 a year in lieu of taxes for houses with two bedrooms and $30 a year for houses with more than two bedrooms.

OPTION TO PURCHASE

The city will have the option of purchasing the houses, according to the agreement, for $1,000 after certain specified dates to be agreed upon.

Another new clause in the draft agreement provides that if Wartime Housing sells any of the houses before a date to be specified, the company will pay the city $400 for each lot, and after a second date will pay $200 for each lot.

After the plot plan has been prepared, Thomas Gray, manager of Wartime Housing, says in the covering letter, "we will call for tenders and from the tendered price we will be able to discuss the terms of the agreement with your municipality."

The draft agreement calls for a house valued at $3,000 but Mr. Gray says that the prices received recently have been running above this figure, and the term of years is extended one year for each $200.

Under the draft agreement the houses would be leased to "sailors, soldiers or airmen returned from general service in the present war, and their dependents, and to the dependents of any sailor, soldier or airman who is on general service outside Canada, or who has been killed on active service in the war." The rents will range from $22 to $30 per month.

Joyce Formally Sent for Trial

LONDON (CP) — William Joyce, who broadcast Nazi war propaganda and became known as "Lord Haw Haw," was bound over formally today for trial in Old Bailey on charges of high treason against the British Crown.

The court offered to pay for two attorneys for Joyce, who has indicated his defence will be that he was not a British subject, but was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., 39 years ago and assumed German nationality in 1940, the year before the United States entered the war.

Joyce's trial has been placed on the docket for the July sessions of the central criminal court, but the exact date has not been set.

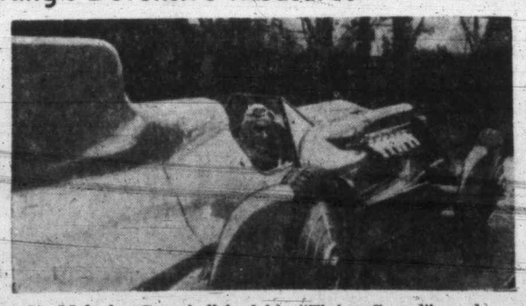
Pasteur to Land Troops at Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — The troopship Pasteur will land 5,000 Canadian servicemen at Quebec July 20, on a test run to see if any relief can be brought to the rail-shipping facilities through the overcrowded port of Halifax, it was learned reliably today.

All troopships have been converging on Halifax because the ocean distance to that port is shorter and the turn-around time of each ship is faster. This is an important factor in ocean transport engaged in the huge task of repatriation and redeployment of Allied forces in Europe.

An official said the great flood of repatriates through Halifax crowded the facilities from that port to such an extent that officials were worried they might have to hold ships longer than necessary trying to disembark the troops into trains.

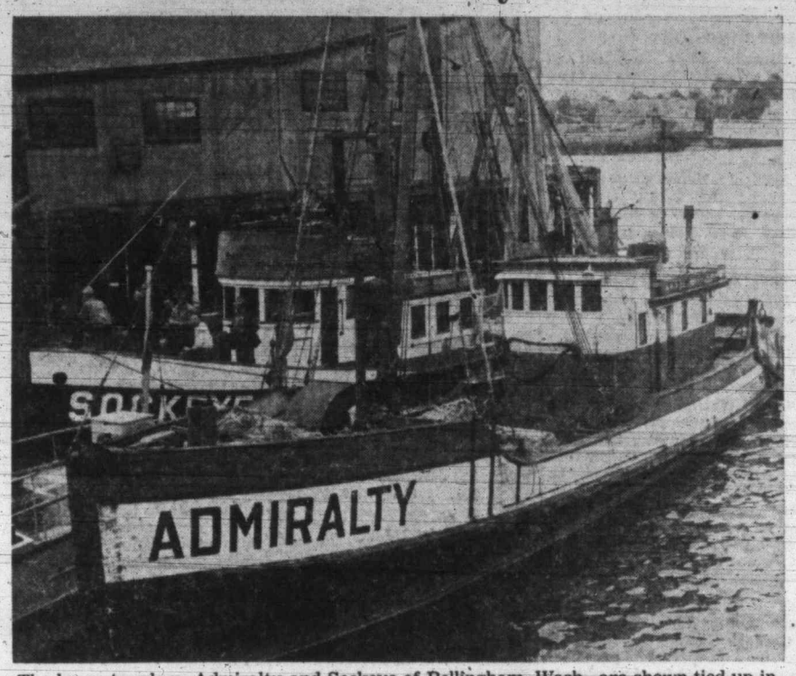
King's Defensive Measures



Sir Malcolm Campbell had his "Flying Squad" ready.

It is now disclosed that had Brtiain been invaded by the Germans, a team of 18 of Sir Malcolm Campbell's crack high-speed racetrack drivers was ready to speed the royal family away to secret places. Men who were prepared to fight to the death formed the bodyguard which was ready for instant action if German parachutists or troops tried to capture the King and Queen and two princesses. The King himself was trained as an expert automatic-gunner, as shown in the second picture above, and the Queen practiced until she was an excellent shot with a light pistol.

U.S. Trawlers Seized By Canada



The beam trawlers, Admiralty and Sockeye of Bellingham, Wash., are shown tied up in Victoria harbor, where they were brought Wednesday by the Canadian fishery patrol ship Kitimat. They were apprehended near Cape Scott, northern point of Vancouver Island, and are charged with illegally entering Canadian waters. G. A. Yardley, customs and excise officer here, is awaiting word from Ottawa as to what action is to be taken. (See Page 13 for picture of crews).

Vancouver Paper Asks for Inquiry Into Barring Press From Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Sun in a newspage story this afternoon said it had applied to the federal Minister of Justice for an inquiry into the action of Mr. Justice A. M. Manson in ordering reporters from a hearing of a B.C. Supreme Court civil case in Victoria.

The Sun in its telegram to Justice Minister St. Laurent said it was "aggrieved" by Mr. Justice Manson's action at hearing of a case involving the will of the late Stephen Jones.

The Sun added:

"The application followed a statement Wednesday by the deputy minister, E. P. Varcoe, K.C., who told the Sun in an exclusive telephone interview that 'if any person feels the judge had done wrong, he could apply to the Justice Minister or the Attorney-General of the province.'

"The Sun applied to Ottawa after it was learned that Attorney-General R. L. Maitland, K.C., is ill in hospital and could not be reached."

The Sun quoted Mr. Justice Manson as saying after the incident that he had not excluded "the public."

OFFICIALS' VIEW

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Department officials said today they look on the action of Mr. Justice A. M. Manson of the British Columbia Supreme Court in ordering newspaper reporters from a court room in Victoria during a case involving a will as unusual.

No action is likely to be taken, however, as the Department of Justice has no supervisory powers over any court. The only recourse from the decision of one court is by appeal to another court.

A dispatch from Victoria Wednesday said the incident occurred during the hearing of a case on the will of the late Stephen Jones.

Aussies Progressing on Borneo Japs Say Balikpapan Destroyed

MANILA (AP)—Australian invaders of Borneo have entered the railroad terminus of Beaufort on the north flank of Brunei Bay, it was disclosed in today's Southwest Pacific Command communique, which told of the complete liberation of the Philippine Island of Luzon.

The Australians have also occupied Kuala Belait, river port for the Seria oil fields. Melbourne radio said Aussies driving below the seized Seria and Miri fields have found only a few scattered Japanese.

The communique said conquest of the 200-mile-long Cagayan Valley on Luzon in 28 days as the conclusive chapter of an operation which:

Began Jan. 9 at Lingayan Gulf; swept down the 125 miles to Manila in 28 days; freed that shell-shattered city after three weeks of battling in its rubbled streets; reclaimed the Bataan Peninsula; and reopened Manila Bay by paratroop-amphibious invasion of Corregidor.

Four more aircraft plants in Japan and 3.45 more square miles of Nipponese cities have been hard hit by Superfortresses, it was announced today in a communique disclosing results of attacks June 18, 20 and 22.

The communique announced heavy and medium bombers unloaded more than 200 tons of explosives on Balikpapan, Borneo east coast oil centre.

The Tokyo radio said today warships continued to bombard the Balikpapan area of Borneo. It made the unconfirmed claim that Japanese planes sank two destroyers and damaged two others Tuesday.

A Japanese war correspondent was quoted as saying the city of Balikpapan has been destroyed and the garrison is "now ready for the possible landing of the enemy."

The Ryukyus campaign, including capture of Okinawa Island and several associated blows by the Navy's fast carrier forces on the Japanese homeland, cost the United States 46,319 casualties, of whom 11,897 were killed or missing.

The U.S. Navy's first venture into the Okhotsk Sea, west of the Kuriles—a penetration which destroyed or damaged a nine-ship convoy—also was announced in today's communique. A task force of cruisers and destroyers sank three cargo ships, probably sank a fourth and damaged the fifth in a daylight action west of Harumukotan Island, 60 miles south of Paramushiro.

U.S. Casualties Total 1,030,679

WASHINGTON (AP)—Combat casualties of the U.S. armed forces during the Second Great War reached 1,030,679 today, a rise of 7,226 within the past week.

Army losses on the basis of names received here through June 21 amounted to 908,025 and navy casualties totaled 122,654.

Report Byrnes To Be New U.S. State Secretary

From Senate to Supreme Court to cabinet—James F. Byrnes as he appeared while a judge of the U.S. Supreme Court. Before that he was a member of the Senate and afterward Director of War Mobilization.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Outwardly unperturbed by the chain of speculation unleashed by his decision to replace Edward R. Stettinius as Secretary of States, President Truman today went cheerfully about the business of celebrating his first Presidential homecoming.

He is making the most of his reunion with the home-folks before starting for Berlin early next month for a Big Three meeting at which he hopes to help lay the groundwork for a final peace treaty "we hope will maintain the peace of the world for generations to come."

The President made no effort to challenge reports that James F. Byrnes is his choice for a new Secretary of State at his press conference Wednesday at Independence. He declined to talk about other cabinet changes he may have in mind.

Simla Conference Runs Into Snag

SIMLA, India (CP)—The conference on an interim government for India faced danger of collapse today as a result of an impasse between the Moslem and Congress parties over Moslem representation in the proposed new government.

Pessimism mounted hourly as it became evident neither party was prepared to yield on the question of whether Moslem League members would be the only representatives of Moslems to be allowed in the government. Some Moslems are not league members.

'Regret' Loss Of Okinawa But Ready to Fight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Japanese boasted today special suicide weapons were being prepared against invasion in a volume "almost equal" to the total number of tanks and guns used in the European war and claimed they would create "world-wide amazement."

The Domei agency quoted one of its correspondents on his return from "special attack" bases scattered throughout Japan. The correspondent said "enormous" numbers of youths were being trained to man the weapons.

"Final, full-fledged results will b obtained when United States forces attempt to carry out a landing on the Japanese mainland," the correspondent added.

Tokyo Defence Army Command Established

"Against that day of battle, another Japanese broadcast said that a "Tokyo defence army" command had been established.

It was the third command to be set up this month and makes a total of nine in the four main home islands. Tokyo formerly was in a defence district which also embraced adjacent areas.

While all Japanese "regret" the loss of Okinawa, said Tokyo radio commentator Ichiro Baba, "Japan's future is indeed bright." He said that since Okinawa is now in American hands the Allies will soon attack the Japanese homeland and "the sooner the enemy comes, the better for us, for our battle array is complete."

Premier Baron Kantaro Suzuki's government, again exercising recently granted emergency decree powers, announced meanwhile a plan to resettle 450,000 of Japan's bombed-out city dwellers on farms.

The move possibly was in answer to demands by the Political Association of Greater Japan, the totalitarian party, that the government increase food production and munitions in the current crisis.

Chungking Premier Visits Moscow, May Agree With Yenan Faction

LONDON (Reuter) — The arrival in Moscow of Dr. T. V. Soong marks a second dramatic reversal in the Chinese Premier's movements.

That he should leave Chungking almost immediately after his arrival there from San Francisco is interpreted in well-informed London quarters as indicative of the deterioration of Chungking-Communist relations during the past three weeks.

It is believed the Russians will make it clear to the Chinese Premier that they do not propose to interfere in the internal affairs of China, but that the Soviet government is prepared to offer its good services to mediate in the conflict between the Chinese Central Government of Chungking and the Communist regime of Yenan.

TOPICAL INTEREST

This now is a matter of general interest to the Allies in view of the impending invasion of the Chinese mainland. At the moment both Chungking and Yenan forces are converging on the coastal districts, particularly the Shanghai area. Unless therefore the standing of these Yenan forces is settled beforehand serious complications may arise in their relations with Allied troops.

At the same time it is believed Dr. Soong will be sounded in Moscow about Chinese intentions in northern China, particularly about Korea and Manchuria. The Russians' standpoint in the past has been to treat both countries as independent of the Chinese Central Government, whatever their postwar status may be.

With Dr. Soong's arrival, Moscow has become the centre of world-wide diplomatic activity—which in well-informed London quarters is thought not to be accidental.

PERIMETER QUESTIONS

At the moment it appears Moscow has taken the initiative in seeking a settlement of a number of outstanding questions on her perimeter. In addition to those under discussion with Dr. Soong and affecting important strategic positions in the Far East, negotiations are also proceeding on the future of the Dardanelles, on Polish - Czechoslovak frontiers and on German reparations. Informed quarters expect the schedule of subjects for discussion has by no means been completed.

The reason for what might be called this present Russian peace-making offensive is seen in diplomatic quarters in a natural desire of the Soviet government to make the most of its present favorable international position and to get as many tricky loose diplomatic ends as possible tied up before the final peace conference meets.

NOT MOURNING—Among those shedding no tears if Adolf Hitler is dead is Frau Rosa Horl, above, 83, midwife who brought the one-time fuehrer into the world 56 years ago. A resident of Braunau, she says she had no sympathy for the man who led Germany and Austria to ruin.

Chinese Capture Liuchow Station

CHUNGKING (AP) — The Chinese high command announced today that Chinese forces assaulting Liuchow had captured a railway station in the western suburbs of that strategic Kwangsi province city and a part of the airfield to the south.

Field dispatches earlier had reported that the Chinese column on the west, paced by low-flying fighter-bombers, was battling toward a junction with other forces battering at Liuchow's south railway station.

The fighting was described as heavy.

The development came in a sudden, swift thrust through enemy defences west of the former U.S. 14th Air Force base in Kwangsi province, and followed a bitter 10-day battle in which 1,300 enemy troops were slain.

The Chinese news service said more than 800 of the enemy were killed in the fight for Likao, 17 miles southwest of Liuchow.

Meanwhile, northwest of the former U.S. base, fighter-bombers of the 14th Air Force smashed at Japanese troops and gun positions

Reveal British Ship Carried Poison Gas

WIESBADEN (AP) — Remember the big raid on Bari harbor in December, 1943? The Luftwaffe came in low just at sunset, its favorite moment for attack, and got 23 ships. What made it so bad was the four ammunition ships. They made a big show when they went up together.

Here is a hitherto unpublished angle of that costly affair. In all the maze of shipping crammed into that harbor of Italy, one British ship whose luck had run out got a dead centre hit with a 500-pound bomb.

Almost its entire personnel died, in a manner everyone hoped never would be necessary in this war. The ship was loaded with poison gas. All armies had to carry it—just in case. The Germans never knew how lucky they were.

OTTAWA (CP) — Award of Mention in Dispatches has been made to Maj. Richard C. Gibb, 27, of Winnipeg and Victoria, a member of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps who went overseas in 1942 and served in the Mediterranean war theatre, Defence Headquarters announced today. Born in England, he was a schoolmaster in Winnipeg before the war.

Canadian Scottish (R) Get Real Battle Test Soon

QUALICUM, V.I. (Special)—Canada's citizen-soldiers, members of the Reserve Army, won high praise from Maj.-Gen. R. F. Worthington, C.B., M.C., M.M., G.O.C. in C., Pacific Command, for their spirited defence of coastal areas as part of their present streamlined summer training.

Two battalions, the 2nd (R) Bn. Seaforth Highlanders have so far carried out their parts of the realistic battle schemes under Gen. Worthington's intensified training plan. Early next month the 3rd (R) Bn. Canadian Scottish and the 2nd (R) Bn. Irish Fusiliers (VR), will carry out similar manoeuvres in the Qualicum-Parksville districts on Vancouver Island.

Leaving their camp headquarters at Nanaimo on the day before the battle scheme, the Reserves travel by motor convoy to a predetermined bivouac area and establish a temporary camp. With the fall of night they begin to make up defence positions around the simulated radar station that is threatened by Commando attack from the sea.

ACTIVE ARMY "ENEMY"

Carrying rifles, Bren guns, mortars, piats and grenades, the defending troops crawl through dense bush and dispose themselves to protect the radar from Active Army troops playing the parts of enemy. Both defence and attackers use member of the Pacific Coast Militia Rangers as guides and scouts to reconnoitre movements and to lead troops through the almost impassable brush.

First Commandoes landing at Qualicum Beach around 3 a.m., rush ashore through the surf and disappear in the bush. So silently is this done that campers and villagers are not awakened. Gen. Worthington comes ashore in an amphibious "duck" immediately behind the attackers and personally follows every phase of the attack and defence.

Through the night Reserve troops wait for the reports of their scouts on the enemy movements, cattle wander about the defence area almost stepping on the defenders whose faces are camouflaged and whose helmets are covered in protective bracken.

SHOT RINGS OUT

Sporadic shots ring out as some eye-weary Reserve spots an imaginary enemy . . . a prisoner is brought in. Silence settles down again, broken only by the singing of birds and the clang of cowbells.

Suddenly heavy firing breaks out and the deeper crash of grenades shows a determined attack is on. Smoke bombs add realism to the scene and the flash of rifle fire lights up dark clumps of fern and shrub.

Whistles of the umpires call for "cease fire" and the tired men—not already casualties—form up and roll away in trucks to a well-earned breakfast at their bivouac areas.

Gen. Worthington describes the value of such schemes in the defence of the coast. Large attack forces from the enemy cannot reasonably be expected, he says, but explains that it is possible for raiding parties to be carried by ocean-going submarines to make "nuisance" raids on important coastal installations.

Ratepayers Petition Council to Demolish Willows Buildings

Property owners adjacent to the Willows Exhibition grounds have petitioned the Oak Bay Municipal Council urging that buildings on the grounds be torn down.

Petitions carrying 131 signatures of taxpayers in the neighborhood were submitted to the council. One petition, signed by 81 persons, said that it was "more than time the rat infested buildings in the area of Oak Bay Municipality known as Willows Exhibition Grounds should be pulled down and no more exhibitions, fairs or horse racing carried on within those grounds any more."

The second petition, with 50 signatures, claimed the racetrack brought an undesirable element to the district, flies and rats were bred in the stables, there were noises, disturbances and smells from goats and pigs on exhibition, the frame construction constituted a fire menace, and the grounds prevented roads being opened up connecting Foul Bay Road and Cadboro Bay Road to the east between Haultain and Lansdowne Roads.

"We feel that Oak Bay having now become a good residential district, the perpetuation of these grounds for racing and exhibition purposes is most undesirable," the petition declared.

Dr. W. P. Walker, municipal health officer, who inspected the grounds and buildings June 8, said conditions found there should not be allowed to exist.

SHOULD BE TORN DOWN

"The stables are old and dilapidated as are all the adjacent animal pens," said Dr. Walker in his report which followed a tour with Reginald Bowering, provincial public health engineer, and Reeve W. L. Woodhouse. "These should be torn down and the ground ploughed up and a crop grown on the soil. Later, if racing is still to continue at the Fair Grounds, that portion should be planted with trees and shrubs, and an effort made to develop the grounds on the lines of a country club."

Dr. Walker pointed out that present conditions present an ideal breeding place for flies which are prevalent in the district in the summer, and suggested a by-law to check conditions," pending a more drastic solution of the problem.

Reeve Woodhouse commented that "the flies there are terrible."

Reeve Woodhouse will head a delegation July 5 to meet with civic and health officials from other municipalities, at the City Hall to consider advisability of forming a Greater Victoria Health Board.

Offer of L. C. Charlesworth, 3602 Cadboro Bay Road, to donate a corner of his property to the Municipality to widen the road was accepted. This will greatly improve the vision for motorists at the northwest corner of Cadboro Bay Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Tag days were granted to the Committee for Medical Aid to China July 21, and to the Women's Auxiliary, R.C.N. base, Esquimalt, July 7.

Garbage disposal cost has been increased from 25 cents per cubic yard to 40 cents in view of new contracts for garbage disposal entered into by the city. On the basis of last year's cost, this will add about $900 to 1945 costs and $1,120 to next year's. Increase is retroactive to March 1, 1945.

Referred for committee action were: A complaint concerning sewage washed up on the beach from fishing boats moored in Loon Bay and application for foreshore rights by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club for protection of their moorings.

A circular on rehabilitation was received from Sr H. Okell and mimeographed forms of the circular, which deals with post-discharge rights of servicemen, will be sent to various municipal organizations.

Round-up

By TOM MERRIMAN

WRITING from Germany, Louis P. Lockner reports Flensburg presents an unreal atmosphere, entirely incongruous with events elsewhere in Germany. German officers dart to and fro in motor cars as though they still were winning the war and had plenty of gasoline to burn. Others strut along with briefcases as though everything depended on their efforts. They salute each other, are saluted by sailors and marines as though they were all in active service. German tars and their sweethearts walk arm in arm along the streets with no thought, apparently, that males in uniform are prisoners of war. There appears to be no curfew. At the offices of the marine school hundreds of stenographers and other female help pour out of the buildings at closing time, but nobody can explain what they are doing now that the war is over—and nobody seems to care.

A RECENT VISITOR to Ottawa was T. M. Douglas, operations vice-president of the Federal Telephone and Radio Corporation of the United States. Purpose of his trip was to attend inaugural ceremonies of the Canadian Army Signal Corps' new powerful shortwave transmitter, but he also is known to have discussed with government circles the possibility of establishing a commercial wireless telephone service across the Dominion. Installation of the system would mean affixing an attachment to an ordinary telephone which would enable a caller in Halifax to dial a Victoria number and get his connection.

ALL THE SUGAR produced in the free world is pooled and the world pool is operated by Great Britain, the United States and Canada for the benefit of the United Nations and liberated countries. When supplies decrease, every one has to take a fair share of the cut. Great Britain, the United States and Canada at all times have the same allowance per person in the population but use the sugar as they see fit within their own borders. One may give more than another to its armed forces or other priority users so that the amount left for each person in a household may not be the same.

With the conquest of Okinawa complete except for minor mop-ups, this pictures shows Maj.-Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, commander of the 6th Marine Division, relaxing on a ridge near Naha and looking over a map. Going somewhere, general?

Fantastic Air Minefield Aided Defence of London During Blitz

LONDON (CP)—Fantastic aerial minefields, suspended in the night sky in the path of German bombers, were a measure used to defend Britain's greatest cities during the dark days of 1940 and early 1941, it may now be disclosed.

London, Bristol, Liverpool, Coventry and Portsmouth were some of the places protected by this "Rube Goldberg" device involving piano wire, toy parachutes and ancient airplanes.

Air mines, attached to pieces of piano wire thousands of feet long, were sown in curtain-like screens by obsolete twin-engined Harrow bombers—relics of the prewar air force. The wires were suspended from baby parachutes and in some cases from little balloons.

The theory of the aerial minefields was that an attacking aircraft would fly into the lower part of the wire and the impact would cause the delicately attached mines to slide down the wires onto the bombers and blow them up. The fantastic thing about it is that it worked.

At least half-dozen raiders were destroyed over London alone in this fashion.

Each Harrow plane carried about 180 such mines and when raids were expected they would fly around until told by ground radio where to hang their minefields. The system was dropped when night fighter and anti-aircraft defences were improved, but even before that they were considered a dangerous experiment.

Although the mines were supposedly self-destroying when the parachutes fell below a certain height, some of them reached the ground and caused damage. In one northern city an intact mine fell in a residential district, snaking thousands of yards of wire across rooftops and in streets. A small boy on his way home from school spotted the wire and pulled it, blowing up a home six blocks away. No one was killed.

For some reason the operation had the operation name of "Mutton." It is thought that the name probably was developed by some wag in the air force from the official name "LAM"—long aerial mines.

Meat Rationing Likely in Canada

SASKATOON (CP)—Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of Dominion Experimental Farms, Ottawa, said here meat rationing might come into effect in Canada within a few weeks "if shipping facilities were available so that this country could meet its overseas commitments." He was addressing a meeting of the Canadian Society of Animal Production.

Dr. Archibald said he hoped if meat rationing were instituted again it would be on a better basis than last time, when consumption increased from three to four pounds a person.

Social Credit Caucus Called for Aug. 16

EDMONTON (CP) — Hon. Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit Association of Canada, said today a caucus of federal Social Credit members-elect will be held here the week of Aug. 16.

Mr. Low said the meeting will be a preliminary for organization purposes, preceding the session of the House of Commons which has been called for Aug. 23.

Thirteen S.C. members were elected in the Dominion general election June 11.

Mr. Low said it had not been decided yet when he will resign from the Alberta cabinet, of which he is a minister without portfolio.

B.C. Contractors To Build for Veterans

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Contractors' Association at a meeting Wednesday launched plans for establishing a private limited company to build houses.

S. D. Buzzelle, president of the association, said these plans would serve the veteran in a better manner than any others formulated in the past. He added the company would be able to handle any number of homes authorized by the government.

First Saskatchewan By-election Friday

SHELLBROOK, Sask. (CP)—The Saskatchewan C.C.F. government tomorrow will face its first test at the polls since sweeping into power a year ago.

The Shellbrook by-election, made necessary by the death of A. V. Sterling, C.C.F., last fall, is a three-cornered struggle. The candidates are H. K. Elder, Liberal; G. F. Van Eaton, C.C.F., and M. A. Courchene, Social Credit.

Mr. Sterling died before he could take his seat in the Legislature. The government has 46 members and former Premier W. J. Patterson, Liberal, leads the five-man opposition party. There also are three active service members of the Assembly, nominally Independent, in the 55-member House.

Australian Urges Free Press Policy in Peace Organization

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Australia's forthright, crusading foreign minister, Herbert Vere Evatt, called today for a permanent free press policy in the future world peace organization.

In a statement to the Associated Press made at the conclusion of the United Nations' Conference here, Mr. Evatt said a lesson should be drawn from the discussions in San Francisco.

"The most important and best decisions," he declared, "were made when the public was represented at our meetings through the press."

"Even so," he continued, "many of the most valuable contributions were lost through the policy of excluding the public from technical committee meetings."

"The purpose of the General Assembly," Mr. Evatt said, "is to air before the world the opinions and views of all the member nations. A healthy exposure of international problems and the seething problems that lead to disputes is essential to neutralize the virus of war."

Mr. Evatt went on to say that with modern communications and hoped-for improvements in international exchange of information, the press serves increasingly as liaison between diplomats and their peoples and among the peoples of the world themselves.

The stocky, straight-spoken Australian plans to return home soon, carrying with him the unofficial title of the champion of the "Little 45" nations of the conference.

Successful Garden Party Held at Christ Church

Over $1,500 was realized at the annual garden party held in Christ Church Cathedral grounds, Wednesday.

In the unavoidable absence of Mrs. W. C. Woodward, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, Bishop H. E. Sexton opened the fete. Immediately afterward, a pleasing ceremony took place, when F. B. Griffin, churchwarden, presented a decorated cake, surmounted with one lone candle, to Dean Spencer H. Elliott, who was celebrating his birthday. Later, the little Misses Muriel Smith and Wendy Love, pupils of the junior Sunday School, presented corsage bouquets to Mrs. Sexton and Mrs. Elliot.

Crowds gathered around the gaily-decorated stalls in various parts of the grounds. The home cooking counter was quickly cleared of its choicest wares; a second-hand book stall held the interest of eager buyers; novelties, fancy work, knitting and white elephant, all had a share in the general popularity. At the garden stall there was a display of roses, kindly donated by Fred Taylor, winner of awards at the Crystal Garden flower show. The "make over, made do" booth, had a number of useful articles that found quick sale.

At an auction in the upper grounds, with W. B. Anders as auctioneer, 50 items went under the hammer, including a child's bunny fur coat, a pair of gum boots, an electric warming pad, a coffee table and a bag of prewar clothespins. In the Deanery gardens, the A.Y.P.A. had a midway, with various games of chance. During the afternoon, the Army Garrison Band played selections in the Bishop's Close. Afternoon tea was served in the Memorial Hall. Presiding at the tea urns were: Mesdames A. E. de L. Nunns, Michael Coleman, Robert Connell, Kenneth Sandercock, Creal, C. Schofield, E. Munn, N. S. Noel, F. Pike and George Biddle.

CONCERT AND DANCE

Feature attraction in the evening was a variety show in the auditorium, under the convenership of Capt. W. Ord and A. S. Miller. The program included pianoforte solos by Pamela Terry and John Beckwith; vocal duet by Miss Ada Burt and W. H. Cox; tableaux by the young ladies of the choir and A.Y.P.A. under the direction of Miss Bernice Hughes and scenes from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" given by the Esquimalt High School dramatic club, under the direction of Miss Gwen Hewlings. Following the concert, the A.Y.P.A. held a dance in the gymnasium, with music supplied by the Navy orchestra.

General conveners were Mrs. L. A. Benson and Miss Irene Webb. Others in charge were: Mesdames G. H. Bissell, H. Nation, F. D. Heseltine, J. Caldwell, G. S. Worsley, E. Rogers, F. Newall, G. T. Spikesley, Finnimore, C. E. Thomas, S. R. Richardson, F. J. Laughlin, the Misses K. Jaffray, L. Graves, M. Lettice L. LeGallais, M. Jones, M. McCulloch, A. Harness and Messrs. A. S. Miller, W. B. Anders, L. A. Densor, W. N. Garside.

Final Batch Of Hitler Babies Due

BAD WIESSEE, Germany (AP)—The baby factories Hitler built for the S.S. are closing down, but not for lack of business.

Thousands of babies conceived before the German surrender will be born during the next seven months, many of them to unwed mothers, but instead of coming into the world in such idyllic surroundings as this Bavarian garden spot, they will be born at home or in city hospitals.

Under the Nazi regime dozens of maternity homes were scattered in hotels about Bavaria and in quiet resort towns like Bad Wiessee where shuttered hotels were commandeered.

Maintaining them was the N.S.V.—National Socialist Volkeswohlfahrt—the party's welfare branch which looked after the babies intended to be Germany's future leaders.

But now that the party is defunct and the bombs have stopped falling in the cities, the young fraus and frauliens are going back home to have their babies.

Oppose 'Hot Spot'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Presbytery decided at its annual meeting Wednesday night to oppose the projected opening of a night club in an old theatre in the heart of this city's Chinatown. Rev. R. J. McIntyre said operation of such a "hot spot" would affect the moral standards of the young girls and men and bring about a general lowering of the standards of behaviour in Vancouver.

Sneak Thief Shot Dead By Windsor Policeman

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Henry Mooney, 33, was shot dead early today by a Windsor policeman who later said he had watched Mooney rob a Chinese and gave chase, warning "stop or I'll shoot."

His head pierced by a bullet from the gun of Const. Joseph Bonk, Mooney died in the street at 5.10 a.m. His last words were his taunting reply to Bonk's warning: "If you can get me, you're good."

Installation of officers will feature the Lions Club banquet, to be held at Terry's, at 7, next Thursday evening. Anniversary of charter night, four years ago, will be observed, and W. Wallace, international counsellor from Vancouver and past governor of district 19, will be the principal speaker. Dr. Clifford Carl, retiring president, will act as chairman until after the installation of Ernest Emery as president.

U.S. Sheriff Ties Down Jap Balloon

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The Desert News told Wednesday of a western sheriff who struggled 55 minutes before he secured intact one of the balloons which Japan has been sending to North America.

The paper said the Office of Censorship in Washington approved the story, which did not disclose, because of security regulations, the name of the peace officer or of the county in which he is sheriff.

A telephone call informed the sheriff the balloon was resting on a hillside, the News said. The officer drove to the spot, only to see the balloon begin to rise.

"I jumped back into my car and drove through the fields like mad until I got stuck in the mud," the sheriff was quoted. "I still was about a quarter of a mile away, so I got out and started to run.

"I ran for more than two miles, up and down hills, before I finally grabbed hold of it when it was forced to the ground by a downdraft in a deep ravine."

He tied it to a tree.

Report Canadians Victims of Massacre

LONDON (Reuter)—The Prague radio said early today that 1,000 political prisoners, including Canadians and New Zealanders, died in one massacre by the Germans in Bohemia and Moravia.

The broadcast added that the mass graves in which they were buried would be opened in the next few days. It did not explain the presence of Canadians in the group.

The broadcast said that last April 16 a transport of prisoners left Johanngeorgenstadt, on the German-Czech border, for Theresienstadt, northwest of Prague.

On the way prisoners from other camps joined the convoy. After 20 days, only 2 of them remained, more than 1,000 having been shot or starved to death.

Undertakers Battle Over Body; 1 Killed

GARY, Ind. (AP) — A dispute between two undertakers over the handling of the body of a man killed in a Gary steel mill accident culminated in a gun fight in which one of the undertakers was slain and three persons were wounded. Police Chief Millard Matovina disclosed details of the clash.

The undertaker slain was J. D. Smith, 59. The wounded are Bruce Hower; the other undertaker; and Smith's wife and his nephew, Clyde Smith. Matovina identified all of them as negroes.

Matovina said investigation showed that an argument started when Hower, at the request of the accident victim's relatives, went to the Smith funeral home to claim the body. Smith, the police report said, obtained a gun and wounded Hower, who then grabbed the gun, shot Smith and wounded Smith's wife and nephew.

Lethal 'Cocktails' Kill 4 in Seattle

SEATTLE (CP)—Lethal cocktails made with wood alcohol, methylacetate, kerosene and ethyl alcohol and known as "Smoke," have killed four men here, possibly blinded a fifth and made others seriously ill, Detective Capt James Lawrence said.

The captain, head of the police department's homicide division, said five men were held on open charges in connection with the case after a raid on a hotel subbasement where the mixture was being manufactured.

Lawrence said perusal of coroner's records prompted the investigation when it was found three men had died in recent days and a fourth succumbed Wednesday. Another man known to have been living at the hotel suddenly was stricken blind, the detective said.

Huge Willow Run Bomber Plant Idle

DETROIT (AP) — The $100,000,000 Willow Run bomber plant came to the end of its war job today with the completion of the last four-engined Liberator bomber plane.

With the end of the European phase of the war, the U.S. Army Air Force announced it had all the Liberators it needed; other types of bombers would take over the job in the Pacific.

After the last bomber is sent from the assembly line the working force at the plant, which at one time numbered approximately 42,000 men and women, will have declined to about 2,000 to be retained as plant protection workers.

U.S. Carrier Struck By Suicide Planes Dumps Inferno Into Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese suicide planes scored two direct bomb hits on the U.S. carrier Bunker Hill, causing 656 casualties, but the flagship of Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher survived four hours of flaming death and will fight again.

The Navy disclosed Wednesday that the Bunker Hill, despite losses of 373 dead, 19 missing and 264 wounded in the engagement off Okiniwa May 11, is home under her own power for repairs at the Puget Sound Navy Yard.

A manoeuvre which literally flung the fire from her hangar deck capped with heroic efforts of her crew and assisting ships conquered the flames.

Three hours after the attack, firefighters were still waging a nip-and-tuck battle on the flaming deck.

Tons of water, poured on thousands of gallons of flaming oil and gasoline, were forcing the firefighters back against the bulkhead. The weight of the water was causing a six-degree list of the ship. Below decks men were dying from heat and suffocation.

The cruiser Wilkes-Barre, a member of the task group, had come alongside, placing her bow hard against the Bunker Hill's starboard quarter, to add her hose to the firefighting. With the Wilkes-Barre at her side, the Bunker Hill went into a wide, 70-degree turn. In turning, the Navy account said, she shifted the load of water across the ship and "sumped the heart of the roaring inferno on her hangar deck out into the sea."

ALMOST A MIRACLE

"Men with lips too burned to cheer rushed forward with their hose," the navy related. "Fresh air whipped across the deck at their backs, forcing the heavy smoke of burning oil and gas away from them. New life breathed through the ship. Men who were lying on blistering hot decks below knew, even as they drew their first breath of fresh air, that some miracle had saved them. They knew, too, that the Bunker Hill would live to fight again."

Commodore A. A. Burke, chief of staff to Admiral Mitscher, said the admiral escaped unhurt, although three officers and 11 men of his staff were killed and about 20 officers and men were wounded or overcome by smoke.

The 27,000-ton Essex class carrier was a proud veteran of every Pacific invasion and campaign since the opening of the central Pacific offensive more than a year ago. Many of her planes were aloft, supporting ground force advances on Okinawa, when a single-engined Japanese fighter came in low and fast on the starboard quarter. The plane dropped a 500-pound, delayed-action bomb and then crashed among 34 planes parked on the flight deck prepared to take off.

The crash started large fires among the parked planes as the suicide plane itself skidded over the side. The bomb went through the flight deck and out the side of the ship, exploding in the air before it hit the water.

About 20 seconds later a single-engined dive bomber sped in from the stern. Despite hits from the carrier's anti-aircraft batteries, it launched a 500-pound bomb which crashed through the after flight deck and exploded in the gallery deck below. The plane crashed into the flight deck.

The navy gave this picture of the ship after the fires were under control:

Decks were warped and twisted. Gun galleries amidships on the port side had been virtually destroyed. Others on the starboard side had been smashed by the Wilkes-Barre when she came close aboard in her rescue role. One elevator, melted almost in two, hung down into the smoking and flame-blackened hangar deck. The gallery deck, where pilots and aircrewmen had sat for briefing that morning, was completely demolished. The flight deck erupted crazily toward the sky, a twisted mass of wood and steel. The island structure, which had been engulfed in flame after the second plane struck, was a shambles of torn catwalks and mangled steel."

Belsen S.S. Guards Victims of Typhus

BELSEN, Germany (Reuter)—Typhus has claimed the lives of 20 S.S. guards of the Belsen concentration camp before their trials by the War Crimes Court can be held at nearby Celle in a few weeks.

It is believed these guards contracted typhus while burying the bodies of starved prisoners, which they were forced to do when the camp was liberated.

Several hundred affidavits have been prepared for the trials and hundreds of enlarged photographs of bestialities are ready as exhibits.

The British War Crimes Department in Germany is prepared to proceed with its first batch of cases as soon as government instructions are forthcoming.

These will include the trial of 20 women, some of whom will answer charges of murder. The charges against them include atrocities against women as well as men.

AN EXCELLENT CHOICE

EVEN BEFORE THE DELEGATES TO the United Nations Conference on International Organization had begun to assemble in San Francisco, metropolitan newspapers and columnists in the United States were speculating on the future of Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius. It was common talk in the city by the Golden Gate that the end of the deliberations there would be the signal for an announcement from President Truman—of a new job for the head of the Department of State and the recall of Mr. James F. Byrnes from his short spell of retirement to succeed Mr. Stettinius. Half of the surmise has proved to be true; and the fact that the ex-assistant to the late President Roosevelt and war mobilizer is to accompany the new President to the forthcoming meeting of the "Big Three" may be taken as the shadow of coming events.

Mr. Truman could not have made a better selection than Mr. Stettinius for the position of American representative on the United Nations peace organization. Few men are more conversant with all the intricate proceedings which consumed nine weeks of earnest endeavor in San Francisco than the chairman of the bi-partizan United States delegation. His ready smile and innate affability were potent factors in thawing the natural reserve which many representatives from foreign lands at first found it difficult to shed. Whether as the presiding officer at plenary sessions, at press conferences, or in those more intimate conclaves with the heads of the other sponsoring nations, Mr. Stettinius proved fully equal to the exactions of all occasions.

His relationship with the business as well as the political life of the United States, moreover, places Mr. Stettinius in an especially advantageous position to promote a thorough understanding among his compatriots of the important role his country must play in reducing the San Francisco document to a practical working organism. The former Secretary of State, therefore, will take to his new sphere of activity a wealth of profound knowledge of all the labors which went into the construction of the new charter and the stern resolution that will be necessary to produce the results for which it has been designed.

NO CHANCE TO SHARE

EXPERTS AGREE THAT ONE OF THE factors which aided materially in the ascendancy and triumph of Allied air forces was the manner in which the operational fliers compared notes and shared the benefits of their individual experiences. When one developed a new and effective technique, it was passed on to his fellows. As a result, the later pilots enjoyed the sum total of the knowledge of their successful predecessors. And where knowledge meant life and achievement, that sharing was a vital factor.

The point is raised to illustrate a fundamental weakness of the Japanese suicide pilot. He faces many obstructions on his way to his target. He has to work out plans in the air to get through. If he fails, his mission is abortive and he is lost. If he succeeds, he does not return to explain his methods to his fellows. And, according to reports, he is becoming less effective not only because defences against him are improved, but because he is becoming a commodity of ever-diminishing supply.

TO AVOID DISTRUST

SUPPORTING THE ARGUMENT THAT the cause of peace is best served by the establishment of an enlightened public opinion comes the forthright declaration of Australia's Foreign Minister Herbert Vere Evatt. In San Francisco yesterday the man who has been unofficially listed as the champion of the "Little 45" made an urgent plea for a free press policy in the future affairs of the world peace organization. Discussing the example of San Francisco, Mr. Evatt said:

"The most important and best decisions were made when the public was represented at our meetings through the press. Even so, many of the most valuable contributions were lost through the policy of excluding the public from technical pommittee meetings."

Two factors may be emphasized to establish the value of maintaining a free press at the meetings of the peace organization. In the first place, the public of the world, on whom the peace depends, should be kept informed, should know what is being done to advance the cause of harmony and should be given information on any difficulties that crop up. When the people know the problems and hear various sides of the cases advanced by competent spokesmen, they can form sounder judgments than when the results of frictions burst forth after camera discussions in biased announcements by interested parties. Secondly, the leaders of the peace organization must realize that anything done behind closed doors is immediately suspect. It is human nature to question the motives underlying actions which cannot be exposed to the public. And when suspicion enters the picture the possibilities of maintaining reasonableness deteriorate.

Nor should the championship of a free press be restricted to the affairs of the organization which drafted the charter for peace at San Francisco. Mutual trust will be strengthened by its establishment in those blanketed sections of Europe from which the free dispatch of news is at present prohibited. Russia could gain immeasurably from a fuller understanding of the western world's will to see freedom of the press honored in territories over which its power now extends.

It is regrettably true that some sections of the press lend themselves to distortion of a nature prejudicial to the interests of the community of nations. But such newspapers are readily recognized and their venom neutralized by the same enlightened public opinion which depends on free and accurate reporting.

Exclusion of honest and responsible reporters from access to the news and its free distribution present dangers that may completely disrupt the harmonious development of a united will toward a greater understanding. Such a policy inevitably creates distrust, whether it be exercised in the Russian occupied zones of Europe, in a Victoria court house, or a city council chamber in Georgia.

'VINEGAR JOE' RETURNS

THE RECENT POSTING OF GEN. JOseph Stilwell, sardonically described as "Vinegar Joe," to the Pacific war areas is extremely significant, not only because it marks his return to active service at the front but because it may indicate that conditions in China have changed considerably. He was in charge of the American forces operating in China until he was recalled by the late President Roosevelt. It was suggested at the time he was a man of plain-speaking and direct methods which did not meet with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's complete approval. Gen. Stilwell was responsible for the utilization of American supplies and felt that these should be entirely directed against the Japanese, and not for any other purpose whatsoever. Postwar revelations may be interesting.

Two high Chinese officials were recently executed—just at the time the Chinese army really began to make headway against the Japanese. This army is operating on the coast between Formosa and Hongkong, and while Gen. Stilwell is to succeed the late Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner who was killed on Okinawa, it looks as if the way was being cleared for him to return to China for the next phase of the war against Japan.

AN IMPRESSIVE TRIUMPH

OUT OF THE SAN FRANCISCO CONference has emerged a better understanding of the British Commonwealth of Nations which may go a long way toward reconciling those differences which must and will occur between representatives of widely differing nationalities. At the UNCIO it was demonstrated time and again that here was a bloc which was not a block in the path of progress; that here were widely differing interests, represented in geographically different spheres, uniting in their determination to impart to others a conception of the meaning of liberty with responsibility for self-government. They expressed different points of view on the methods by which peace could be attained, but were solidly united on the principles by which peace could be maintained. They were realistic before they were idealistic.

Many delegates to the Conference, especially those from the Central and South American states, went to San Francisco quite convinced that the British Empire was a national unit with six votes for its independent states. When they discovered that Britain might vote one way and Australia, New Zealand, Canada, and India another, they were vastly astonished. And when they also realized that they stood with the smaller nations against the "Big Three" as long as the smaller nations were ready to compromise and realize that upon the "Big Three" lay the responsibility for peace, they were profoundly impressed. They had understood that during war the members of the British Commonwealth and Empire were willing to die for it; but what they had not appreciated was the fact that it depended mainly on goodwill and sentiment for existence, and not on the exercise of a central authority.

DIFFERENCE OF OUTLOOK

ONE OF THE MOST POTENT SOURCES of friction between people who might otherwise get along together quite cordially, is prejudice against customs which are taken as a matter of course by one and regarded with jaundiced eyes, if not horror, by the other. Our type of political civilization is based on Magna Charta, which places the law above King or Parliament. But what does a Bedouin tribesman know about Magna Charta? For him his tribal chief is the law. For the matter of that what does a Bulgarian peasant know about our concept of political liberty? For him the family circle represents the nucleus of his political life which is largely circumscribed by the village.

When to ordinary differences of opinion there is added deliberate propaganda, to try to convert those who are opposed to the point of view of the prosecutor, friction through misunderstanding is bound to occur. It is quite impossible for the man who takes for granted the ordinary processes of what he calls the law, to accustom himself to the point of view of the man who regards his political faith as above the law and completely sacrosanct.

NOTES

To estimate what they'll give up to insure a world peace organization, observe how much they lost in the war.

A general says: "After the war we'll make nothing but jet-propelled planes." If it is that good, won't jet motors push trains from the rear?

HAY UNDER THE STARS

IT WAS A GREAT MISTAKE, artistically speaking, when they invented the mechanical hay mower. The man with the scythe was a noble sight. Observe with what rhythmic motion he swung his blade, how the muscles rippled in his brown arms and back, how his legs swayed with the delicate balance of the ballet dancer. In reaping-time the ordinary farmer became a Greek statue in bronze. But he has gone.

It was lovely work, scything, when we were young—the smell of the early morning in the heavy fields, the sandwiches by the chattering brook at noon, the blessed cool of the evening when the wagon started for home. All that is over for us now, but the hay remains. It lies today in its fat windrows across the vast bosom of Canada. It is cocked up in neat little stacks ready for the big wagons. It is pouring into haylofts against the winter.

No man who wants to understand life should overlook the hay. Unfortunately the underprivileged dweller in the city cannot feel the magic of the scythe in his hand, or learn the finer points of the pitchfork, or feel the hay dust sticking to his wet skin under the noontime sun. But there are still hayfields about in most towns of Canada and the wise man will not let a haying season go by without investigating them.

IT IS BEST, of course, to sleep out on a haycock, and we have it from that great artiste, the late Ellen Terry, that life cannot be understood at all without this experience. Now, it may prove inconvenient and perhaps cause scandal if the respectable head of a city family comes home in the morning covered with wisps of hay and announces that he has merely been following Miss Terry's advice and at last has discovered life for himself. But at least a man can find a field and throw himself down for an hour or two on the heaped-up hay, and then he will discover that Miss Terry, as usual, was right.

All the exultant memories of our boyhood are buried in the hay, the memories of old haylofts where you could jump down from the beams, of patient horses chewing steadily in their stalls, of old saddles and broken harness, of dusty liniment bottles left on the shelf by hired men dead these 50 years—all the peculiar glory of ancient barns which are the true beginning and centre of civilization itself.

AND BETTER than all the synthetic perfumes of Paris, at $50 a half ounce, is the smell of hay as you thrust your head into it. It does not excite or tantalize like the the scent in the hair of beautiful women. It does not mystify like the fancy bottles advertised in the magazines. There is in it no sin like that guaranteed by the better manufacturers. It is just hay, the smell of man's immemorial union with the soil and the soil's growth; and more than any other living sensation it assures man of the continuing life and survival of the earth which all his wars, feuds, invention and destruction are powerless to break.

Lie, then, on your haycock and observe the night come over the pungent fields. In the fading woods now the robins begin their haunting good-night song, and little birds titter nervously at the dark, and a cranky owl hoots, and a cloud of flies murmur in their dying love flight, and far off the cowbells tinkle, the sure music of our lost boyhood. The shadows of the haycocks have grown long across the yellow stubble and slowly fade out. Then, while the day still glows in the west, the first star flickers timidly in the east and presently its companions swim out beside the thin wisp of the summer moon.

ALL THIS has been going on for a long time now. As long as men have tilled the earth the summer nights have breathed over the hay, back to the valleys of the Nile and Euphrates and to the field where Ruth stood in homesick tears among the alien corn. Always the fields have steamed with perfume and the dusk has come and the stars as the earth turned. Always men have looked up and wondered at it and learned the ultimate truth that all real truth is beyond their imagining.

You might say, indeed, that there are only two kinds of men in the world, those who have lain among the hay and looked up at the night, and those who have not. The former are quiet and peaceful men, undisturbed by the clatter of civilization and the clash of nations, for they have seen, in the broad mirror of the skies, how little all this worldly business amounts to; while men who have not known hayfields in the night are forever blinded by the glare of artificial lights, wherein the truth is hidden.

LIE, THEREFORE, UPON THE HAY and look up at the sky and return to your house at dawn. Perhaps you will cause doubts and sly questionings in the bosom of your family, but these will not disturb you. Nothing will ever disturb you much again after you have known the hay in the deep-breathing night of summer.

CATS IS CATS

From the Ottawa Journal

We have been printing some angry letters about cats, for and against. We have heard from the cat-lovers, who tell us of Pussy's loving disposition, striking intelligence and usefulness in killing vermin. We have heard, too, from those who think the only good place for a cat is buried under a rose bush. An argument about cats invariably takes this line, because most people aren't indifferent about cats—they either adore them, and can find no fault in their pets, or they detest them and would cheerfully see the tribe exterminated.

Yes, America and Russia are the two greatest powers. But it might be smart not to count out "poor old England. We did that before and guessed wrong.

They Have Earned Mankind's Confidence

By WALTER LIPPMANN

TO ASK whether the charter of the United Nations will work is rather like asking whether a B-29 will fly from San Francisco to Guam. A B-29 can be flown that far. But whether it will be flown that far does not depend on the engineers who designed it and the managers and workers who manufactured it. The machine itself will not fly itself anywhere; it has to be flown by a pilot, a navigator and a crew, and if they do not know how to operate it, and if they do not know how to find their way, the plane, no matter how well designed and constructed, will not go to Guam.

The fair and accurate question to ask about the charter is not whether the international institution will work. The question is whether we can make it work. The difference between these two questions is all-important. If we stand around and ask whether it will work, we are really saying that we expect "it," a piece of paper with words written on it, to be a kind of automatic robot and big tin god to keep the world at peace. But if we ask whether we, the American people acting through our government and using our power and influence wisely, can make it work, then we are asking the right question. When our own constitution had been written and ratified, the question of whether it would work was answered by Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, Marshall and the others who were determined to make it work, and knew how.

WHAT WARRANT have we for thinking that this charter can be made to promote and preserve peace? That it is the charter of a union or confederation which contains all the nations now capable of waging war; war can occur only if this union is dissolved. This distinguishes the new organization radically from the old one. The Geneva League never contained all the powers capable of waging war: Russia was not invited until long after the United States had declined to join. Thus the Geneva League was never a union of the powers; this association will be a union of the powers. Germany is no longer a power, or even a state, though it is of course a nation, or perhaps several nations. Japan, when she is defeated, will cease to be a power. Eventually Germans and Japanese will be admitted to the union. In the meantime, the union contains all the actual powers of the world, all who are capable of waging war, all that must be concerned in making and preserving peace.

Union, then, is the paramount principle of the charter.

IT DOES NOT establish a system of "collective security" if by that ambiguous phrase we mean a system under which all nations undertake to police all other nations.

Under the new charter there is no undertaking to police any one of the five great powers. In fact, since every smaller state is intimately associated with at least one of the five great powers which as a matter of its own vital interest is bound to protect it, the police function of the new organization cannot be its basic principle.

Its basic principle is union, as is the basic principle of the United States or of the British Commonwealth: neither in the United States nor in the British Commonwealth does there exist a constitutional right to coerce a state or a dominion. But we at least have fought a war, not to coerce a state, but to preserve a union.

The new organization is, therefore, properly and significantly designated the United Nations.

THE question naturally arises: who then polices the policemen? Well, who does police the policemen? If they rebel, presumably the army polices them. But who, then polices the army? There is only one possible answer to the question of what regulates and controls the strongest power in any community: law and the habit of obedience to law, and the sense of the officers and men that they can use their force only to uphold the law and in conformity with law.

In the international community the bonds of law are not nearly so firm as they are within the maturest states. But there is no substitute for the bonds of law if peace is to endure. In basing the new organization on the principle of union, rather than on the idea of all nations policing all nations, the San Francisco charter commits the United Nations to the development of an international society under the rule of law.

THE DELEGATIONS at San Francisco have not created such a society. But they have designed institutions and laid down the commitments which, if we are wise and persevering, can be used to make the United Nations become an international society.

More than that no one had the right to ask of the conference: to have done that much is to have done all that was possible, and to have earned in full measure the confidence and gratitude of mankind.

The INTERNATIONAL SCENE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

Quite a lot of good folk who are sensitive in the matter of mental tidiness are worried because the Allies haven't yet announced a detailed program covering every phase of the punishment and regeneration of Germany.

Speaking of programs in general, these critics may be right in insisting the i's to be dotted and the t's be crossed, but there are exceptions to every rule—and this is one of them, as I see it. Anyway, there certainly are great advantages in being able to handle the Germans under a very flexible arrangement at this juncture. So there's method in the Allied madness.

The point is that we are dealing with a lot of tricky imponderables in working out this problem. The Big Four must proceed cautiously in making commitments lest they find their hands tied in uncomfortable situations.

Every day the Allies are discovering fresh and startling acts about Hitler's plans for conquering the world. His schemes exceeded anything he displayed in action. Official letters and documents discovered in Berchtesgaden and other places are proving to be gold mines of information.

For instance we have learned Hitler's method of handling his problem of keeping Turkey neutral. Spain's friendly relations with the Axis are becoming more clear. We are gleaning the inner thoughts of other countries during the war, too.

Then we may expect that Allied research in connection with the trials of war criminals will provide us with further invaluable information regarding the ramifications of the Nazi activities, not only in Europe but in the western hemisphere. We shall learn more about Hitler's scheme of restoring Nazilsm's war potential by the creation of a politico-economic empire in the western hemisphere. We shall add to our list of who's who among the warmongers.

This, of course, isn't an argument against a concrete Allied program.

EFFICIENT FIRE DEPT.

We wish publicly to compliment the Victoria Fire Department on their most efficient and capable handling of the recent fire in our establishment.

Their skill in quickly putting out the fire and confining the blaze to the upper floor has saved a large and valuable stock of draperies and carpets which would be impossible to replace now.

Victoria can be well proud of the personnel and management of this department.

Delegates Ask Speed In Power Development

Speedy development of power for the Nanaimo district has been talked over by a delegation from the up-island city with the provincial cabinet.

The group discussed the Nanaimo and the Campbell rivers as possible sources of power.

Included in the delegation were Mayor George Muir, Ald. J. Campbell and I. V. Saunders, Board of Trade president.

Col. Purves, D.S.O., Spending Leave Here

Lt.-Col. Robert Lloyd Purves, 33, native of Victoria, a former school teacher who won the Distinguished Service Order for his exemplary leadership and bravery at the Gustave line in Italy last year, has arrived home for two weeks' leave with his wife Elizabeth, and parents Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Purves, 409 Dunedin Street.

"I've noticed the town has changed and now I seem to know very few people here. Victoria appears very active with the appearance of much going on," he said.

Col. Purves attended Victoria High School, Victoria College and U.B.C. before teaching in Calgary prior to enlistment five years ago.

Citation for his award stated that at great personal danger at the critical point of battle, he had led his tank squadron into fierce enemy opposition, and by his excellent use of them, enabled the capture of San Angelo, pivot of the Gustav line in the area.

Following his leave here, Col. Purves will undertake a new appointment at Ottawa.

Col. Logan Leaves Fairbridge School

Lt.-Col. H. T. Logan, who recently resigned as principal of Fairbridge Farm School near Duncan to do public relations work for the Fairbridge Farm School Society in London, Eng., left his post Wednesday.

Col. Logan plans to spend a few weeks holidaying with Mrs. Logan in B.C. and eastern Canada before starting his duties, which will take him to the farms of the society in Australia and Britain as well as here. He hopes to make his headquarters subsequently in B.C.

Formerly assistant to the principal, W. J. Garnett has been appointed principal.

Born in Nova Scotia, Col. Logan was educated at various elementary schools on Vancouver Island and the mainland, at Vancouver High School, McGill University and Oxford. A veteran of five years' fighting in World War I, he won the Military Cross in action east of Arras.

After the last war, Col. Logan returned to his teaching post at University of B.C., where he served 16 years before his appointment to Fairbridge. He is a member of the senate and board of governors of the university.

Also a Rhodes scholar who studied at Oxford, Mr. Garrett had received early education at Charterhouse and Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. During World War 2 he served in the R.C.N.V.R. as a lieutenant and saw action on north Atlantic convoy routes.

Clarity of Ideology Important in Speech

On the subject of "Articulated Argument," Frank Paulding, Y.M.C.A. general secretary, addressing the Speakers' Club Tuesday evening said: "Important as vocal clarity is, the clarity of your ideology is even more important."

Concerning headlines, he said, "You might ask 'if the speech is titled, why title divisions?' The simplest answer is to say, 'Look at a newspaper.'

"There are values to the speaker and to the audience in articulated argument,'" he said. "The speaker will find that it will clarify and crystalize his ideas; it will enable him to present his thoughts logically and lucidly; it will develop his analytical sense and power to grasp and present a subject. The audience will understand more clearly what the speaker is driving at, will listen more attentively and will remember more easily."

LONDON—Rear Admiral H. Hickling, who helped plan the invasion of France, said that "in operation 'Overlord'—which was the invasion—one tug was worth two battleships. It took 200 tugs three months to get down the south coast of England the stuff which made the Mulberry harbors."

Will Need Helpers To Pick Berry Crop

"As soon as the loganberry crop comes in, around July 5, we will need all the help available said C. M. Smith, manager of the Dominion-Provincial Emergency Farm Labor office after a district inspection Wednesday.

Stating that the strawberries were now finishing, Mr. Smith said that "raspberries are starting to be picked and they will be followed by black currants, cherries and loganberries."

Three buses have been leaving Vancouver Island Coach Lines depot every morning for the past ten days and a bus will be routed by way of the West Road as soon as the situation warrants it. There are still a few vacancies for High School girls over 16 years of age during the last two weeks of July. Those interested should apply to Miss Hoadley, Mount Newton Hostel, Keating Cross-Roads.

Mural Decorations Transform Y.M. Hut

Mural decorations, the work of an army private and a Y.M.C.A. War Services supervisor, have transformed the Macaulay Hut into one of the best in Canada.

Highlighted by 13 large floral paintings in the auditorium and a large imitation stained glass window in the chapel, the artistically decorated hut was improved since last August, when Art Peacock became war services supervisor and set Pte. Yvon Doucet to work.

Made out of old cardboard blackout curtains fitted into the windows of the auditorium and using only 25 cents worth of paint, the murals were executed by 31-year-old Pte. Doucet, highly paid peacetime display artist in Toronto.

Flowers shown on the black background used are roses, daisies, tulips, poppies, asters, morning glories, irises, orchids, tiger lilies, columbines, holly and peacocks—flowers common to Vancouver Island.

Tough Burma paper, ten-test, cheap dye and India ink, plus a soaking in linseed oil were employed in the making of the decorative east window in the chapel. These ingredients make the window translucent, so that when it is lighted from the back the color of the three large roses depicted and twining green stem and leaves are vividly shown.

Part of the decoration for the auditorium is a set of highly colored totem poles of authentic design. Wings of the stage are done in rococo work of bright red and yellow colors.

Prizes Presented At Lampson School

Nearly 100 prizes and chevrons, including the Reeve's prize for the best all-round student, were presented at the closing ceremonies of Lampson Street School, Wednesday.

Reeve Thomas Hadfield, who originated the prize, presented it to Arthur Rumsby. Esquimalt Women's Institute medal, for the leading Grade 8 graduate, was awarded Claire La Voie, and the cash prize and illuminated certificate of Mary Croft Chapter, I.O.D.E., Gwendolyn Caley.

The School Board, Women's Institute, P.-T.A. and pupils presented gifts to Miss Ethel Morrison, school nurse, who is retiring. Benjamin Caley, chairman of Esquimalt Board of School Trustees, presided.

Also holding closing exercises Wedensday was Colwood School. Rev. G. H. Greenhalgh presided.

IPSWICH (CP) — When Stanley Wilby, $16 a week loader at an Ipswich corn mill, got a football pool cheque for £14,000 (about $63,000) — more than he could earn in a lifetime — he didn't even take a day off to celebrate.

Laboratory Head

Temporarily taking charge of the Dominion Department of Agriculture's forest insect investigations branch here is Dr. Kenneth Graham.

Dr. Graham will carry on until arrival of H. A. Richmond from Winnipeg later this summer. Mr. Richmond will succeed Dr. M. L. Prebble, who has gone to a higher post.

A graduate of University of B.C., Dr. Graham took his M.Sc. at McGill and was awarded his Ph.D. at Toronto University last spring.

The six-man entomological laboratory here is the only one of its kind on the B.C. coast.

Victorian Visits Hollywood Canteen

Canadians are no more unusual at the Hollywood Canteen than they are where the fighting is thickest, but a Canadian who earned an unusually hearty round of applause was Pte. Edith A. Chappell of 2938 Cedar Hill Road, Victoria.

Her son, her daughter, and her husband are all in uniform too.

Her husband, Cpl. Albert E. Chappell, is overseas; one son, Scott, also a corporal, is in Italy, and the daughter, a private, is stationed at Harrison Hot Springs.

Another daughter, the youngest member of the family, served in the army for two and a half years before honorable discharge. This daughter is married to Pte. James Harrison. And Pte. James Harrison is now overseas.

War Mother Chappell deserves a bit of luck, and she had it at the Hollywood Canteen. She won a $25 War Bond donated by Fred MacMurray. She is shown in the picture as she received her bond from screen star Red Cramer, who acts as master of ceremonies.

Auxiliary Needs Flashes, Glens For Wounded

An Indian boy who served with the Canadian Scottish in a western front battle turned on his cot in Shaughnessy Military Hospital to speak to the visitor. She wanted to know if she could bring him anything, and in a voice that was only a whisper he replied that he had lost his Glengarry when he was wounded and wanted her to replace it.

The visitor was Mrs. R. H. Peach of the Canadian Scottish Women's Auxiliary, who sees Canadian Scottish patients at Shaughnessy every week to talk with them and to deliver cigarettes and other parcels.

Next time she came to the ward where the Indian boy lay she brought the glen he had requested. To add to his delight, what seemed to be the entire tribe were there to see him receive it.

In Victoria this week to visit her sister, Mrs. W. R. Russell of the auxiliary, Mrs. Peach explained that the Department of Veterans' Affairs notifies the auxiliary when Canadian Scottish troops arrive at Shaughnessy. Then each week she visits the hospitals and in addition to supplying them with cigarettes she also finds out what else they need.

Among the requests are shoulder patches, glens, not issued by the army to wounded, battle flashes and silver cap badges. Usually these are taken over by the army when a soldier is wounded and removed to hospital. Now shortages are causing difficulties for the soldiers anxious to replace them before leaving hospital.

Mrs. Russell asks that anyone having these articles to spare telephone her at G 3716. With Mrs. W. H. Parker of the auxiliary she visits Gordon Head Reconditioning Centre every week to see Scottish troops there as Mrs. Peach does at Shaughnessy.

Dorothy Dix

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am in love with a girl who is very beautiful and everything that a fellow would want in a wife. My problem is that I know she is in love with a boy overseas in the service. Should I write to him and tell him that I am in love with his girl and for him to quit writing to her? Would there be a chance for me to win out if I did this?

RONALD.

Answer: Well, Ronald, I would think that you would kill whatever budding fancy the girl might have for you by pursuing such a high-handed method of wooing, for you practically are ordering her to fall out of love with the man she is engaged to and to fall in love with you.

And what do you think that soldier is going to be doing when you command him not to write to his girl any more? Remember he is a fighting man and he won't hand over his sweetheart to you just because you ask it. You will have to get a better technique than that to win the lady.

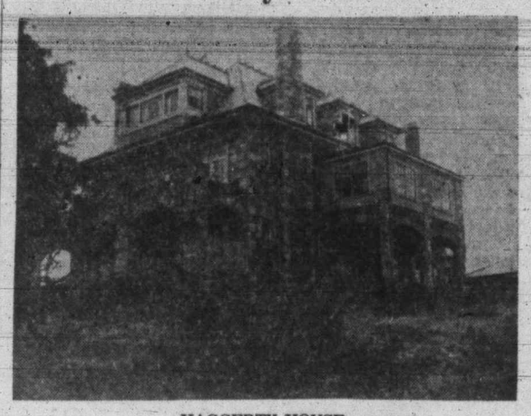
City Landmarks Among Sales In Brisk Realty Market



HAGGERTY HOUSE

A well-known Victoria landmark overlooking Government House, former Haggerty House, on Manor Road, now the Manor Apartments, built by the contractor who constructed the E. and N. Railway, was bought recently by Mr. and Mrs. William Rosser McLaurin of Burnaby. Only one of its kind, the solid granite building has a solid roof, made of slate imported from England. Miss May E. Cherry, 1320 Rockland Avenue, reconverted the house into six suites in 1937, since when it has changed hands several times. William Kennedy of Pemberton, Holmes Ltd., was the agent.

Other sales reported recently in a brisk real estate market include:

Sale of the site of the old Victoria Hotel, first brick hotel in Victoria, built in 1858, A. Bernard, Ker and Stephenson agent, effected the sale. Well-known local interests bought the whole block extending from Government Street right around to Gordon Street, including the Windsor Hotel and a store on Courtney Street, three stores on Gordon, and three stores on Government.

Sir Ernest Petter's property, the Loowil Apartments, 1249 Fairfield Road, was recently sold to F. J. Duncan, through Mr. [illegible] Kennedy.

Orchard House Apartments on Michigan Street, formerly the old Jones residence, was bought by C. Kerr, A. Knudson and J. Russell from W. P. D. Pemberton, through [illegible] H. Gowland, agent for Pemberton, Holmes.

Mrs. Florence M. Forrest, former owner of the Tweedsmuir Apartments, bought the Mount Royal Apartments, 668 Superior Street. W. E. Stepney of Pemberton, Holmes Ltd., acted as the agent.

A fine 60-acre estate near Duncan was sold to Vancouver purchasers. The property will be used for breeding and raising Palomino horses. The agent was H. M. Hall of Pemberton, Holmes.

LONDON — The King intends to farm four properties added to the Royal estates by the Crown's purchase of Sunninghill Park at Ascot, it is understood.

Thoughts of Home Uppermost Now Among War-Weary Canadians

By ROY 'CAP' THORSEN
Former Victoria Times Reporter

HOLLAND, Wierden Area—In almost every overseas Canuck camp these days (the postwar period one month old), the get-togethers of old comrades who have come through "the mill" result in events of battle days being dug out of the moth balls in the memory box and relieved again by word of mouth.

There are many, many gruesome memories . . . and there are events that are still nauseating, to even think about . . . but, on the whole the memories "of it all" do not dwell on the gory side of the action picture . . . Rather they touch in the more humorous direction—and when you look backward today you can find much more to laugh about in "this and that" incident which did not register at the time when the heat of war was full on because of more predominating ugly features . . . And, yes, the things that happened which were utterly fantastic, such as a shell landing not farther away than five yards from one soldier—and not even scratching him—but at the same time killing two people outright many yards away (the kind of stories which will be scoffed at if related on civvy street to other than those who have experienced the front line.)

A GET-TOGETHER

As I write this one of these get-togethers is in progress in the orderly room tent, where, in the midst of our still-vivid recollections, we make up a "midnight" snack to fried eggs and coffee—no, we are not dreaming—a radio in the background giving out softly with swing numbers, and the voice to stop all talking to listen—that of Bing Crosby, still top No. 1 man in the soldiers' eyes.

Almost without exception all members of these gatherings are veterans who can trace incidents of the war right back to Sicily days. Tonight they are: Cpl. Sammy Karrel, Glace Bay, N.S.; Elmer Alex McMillan, Dunbar, Ont.; SQMS. Reginald Epps, Halifax, N.S.; Horton ("The Corvette") Carbett, Galt, Ont., Charlie H. Conors, Toronto, Ont.; T. Arbuckle, Work Creek, Alberta . . . and two others who have been accepted as part of the "gang"; Bonar L. Hannay, Victoria, B.C., a veterans overseas man who was with the Canuck engineers for most of his overseas time, but has been with us for six months; Jack Crotinger, Niagara, Ont., who I am not very well acquainted with, but who nevertheless saw plenty of the "rugged" in Eyetieland.

A GREAT UPLIFTER

The day of thanksgiving for us Canucks, we agree unanimously, will not be until we touch Canadian soil once more . . . The thought that home will loom up in our vision in the not too distant future, is a great uplifter of morale.

As we "sit it out" waiting for the home journey call, it is certainly a "bit of awlright" to be able to do the waiting in a European atmosphere that is not charged with the horrors of war . . . The only sounds to remind us we have been through a war are the blowing up of demolitions and mines left in the wake of the historic German retreat, the noise of a few planes overhead, which does not now necessitate the sleeping in a hole in mother earth or dashing for a "ole" when caught in the open unawares . . . The sounds of guns belching their packets both ways, the crump of mortar bombs, the brisk "brrrrrt" of the enemy Spandaus, the cheeky "tut-tut-tut" of the Brens and the noises of other weapons of the war in the front lines are of the past now . . . Today we can eat more regular, sleep more peacefully, keep cleaner—yes, it all adds up to quite a grand feeling.

COMRADESHIP

And as you listen to the boys relate their bygone action days you learn that almost without exception they have someone in mind who in their opinion is one of the great many "unsung heroes" of World War No. 2 . . . Some of these memorable comrades of ours made the supreme sacrifices to rid the world of the Nazi menace, some were returned to Canada long before this, but minus an arm or leg or suffering from some other disability, and some are still among us over here . . . They are the men who will never die in our memories, for whenever we let our minds dwell back on the frontline days their faces will appear time and again.

(Note—"The Corvette" Corbett, one of those who makes army life bearable for the many with the many laughs we get out of his "strictly from the cob" corny sayings and antics, got his nickname from the way he goes: "Whoop, whoop," just like the hoots of the ships of the same name.) P.S.: "The Corvette" is waltzing around with a pair of heavy wooden shoes decorating his feet—and he has just finished painting them a deep blue.

SHOREHAM BEACH—In 1940 Winchelsea Beach, Camber, Pett Level, Shoreham Beach, Pevensey Bay and Norman's Bay, all in Sussex, were evacuated under defence regulations. Access to homes in the areas was restored May 1 — but many residences were torn down in preparing for invasion which never came.

POST-WAR MILEAGE IS AVAILABLE NOW!

Far into the post-war period, the B. F. Goodrich Synthetic Rubber Tires you put on your car today can give you as long, safe, trouble-free mileage as pre-war tires ever did.

You can drive over all kinds of roads, for the new B. F. Goodrich passenger car tires are built with Hi-Flex cord—formerly only used in B. F. Goodrich Truck Tires. These new synthetic rubber tires are tough and strong, cool-running and resistant to road bruises.

On smooth, wet highways, B. F. Goodrich Lifesaver Tread sets an all-time standard of safety. When you step on the brakes, the "windshield-wiper" action wipes the pavement so dry you can strike a match on it . . . giving a positive non-skid grip.

It costs no more to have a set of B. F. Goodrich Synthetic Rubber Tires . . . fully capable of giving you the long mileage you will need for post-war driving, plus all the B. F. Goodrich safety features. So, the next time you buy tires, insist on B. F. Goodrich Tires.

Victorians Greeted By Families On Return From War

Although Pte. Norman Martin has parachuted into France and Germany and also fought in Belgium, airborne battles weren't over for him when he came home Monday. He will get ready for the Pacific campaign after spending a month's leave with his sister, Mrs. W. Rowan, and her son, Barry, at Langford. Pte. Martin, former pupil at Oaklands School, has been away two years.

Sgt. James Forrester, P.P.C.L.I., was greeted by his father, J. B. Forrester, 2237 Windsor Road. A former student at Victoria High School and Victoria College he left for overseas five and a half years ago.

Another member of the 1st Canadian Paratroopers who will go to the Pacific is Pte. Thomas Scoular. Meeting him were his father, Thomas Scoular, 2739 Graham Street, and his sisters, Margaret and Maureen.

Cpl. Wilfred Crowther, P.P.C.L.I., accompanied by Mrs. Crowther, arrived in Victoria to visit the former's mother, Mrs. W. Crowther, Oxford Street. He returned to the coast last week, after more than five years overseas during which he saw action in Sicily, Italy and on the western front.

Welcoming FO. Barry Hall, Pacific volunteer, were his mother, Mrs. E. R. Hall, and his sister, Miss Muriel Hall, who reside at the Experimental Farm. FO. Hall has completed a tour overseas as navigator in a Halifax bomber. He will spend a month here.

L. Bdr. Ray Moore who fought with the 8th Army in Sicily and Italy and who also saw action in Holland and Germany, came home on leave last week, and was greeted by his sister, Mrs. Peggy McKean, 2604 Richmond Road. He is a son of the late L.Cpl. David Moore, Victoria veteran of the First World War.

A veteran of the Italian campaign, Sgt. Cecil Grinsted, New Westminster Regiment, who was wounded in the Gothic Line battle, was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Mabel Grinsted of Vancouver. They will visit Cpl. Doris Grinsted, R.C.A.F. (W.D.), who is stationed here.

C. Sto. Wally Howe, on leave from H.M.C.S. Haida says: "I'm going to rest. That, to me is the main thing. I'll do a little fishing sure, but I'm really going to catch up on a lot of good grub."

Thirty days' leave at his home, 2820 Park View Drive, were in store for FO. Neilson, R.C.A.F., when he stepped ashore in Victoria. A former student at Mount View High School he has been flying with the Alouette Squadron from the United King-

Mrs. John Fennell, 2988 Douglas Street, saw her son, Cfn. Sidney Fennell, R.C.E.M.E., for the first time in nearly six years when she met him on his arrival in Victoria. He has been with the Canadian army in Sicily, Italy and western Europe.

PO. Christopher Pike arrived to stay with his grandmother, Mrs. A. B. Cotton, Terrace Avenue, after a year and a half overseas during which he flew with the Ghost Squadron. PO. Pike, who attended University School here, is a Pacific volunteer.

Churchill Refutes Monty's Statement 'Finished in 1941'

WITH CHURCHILL ON CAMPAIGN TOUR (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill disagrees with "the view that we were nearly finished or finished in 1941" and declared that as a matter of fact "we were getting stronger every day."

Field Marshal Montgomery told a group of U.S. officers and men at Wiesbaden, Germany, Tuesday that Britain "was finished" in 1941 and could not have survived without American aid.

Mr. Churchill made his statement in the northern city of Bradford, where along with the cities of Halifax, Burnley, Blackburn and Preston, his electioneering campaign carried him Wednesday.

Safe-Cracking Wave Stirs Portland Police

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A squad of detectives hand-picked for their marksmanship has been ordered to "shoot to kill" in a city police department move to break up a wave of safe-cracking.

Detective Chief J. J. Keegan told the seven man squad more than 1,000 men in the Portland area are known to have police and prison records involving safe robberies, some of them "desperate and experienced criminals."

He reported thugs have looted business strong-boxes of $75,000 to $100,000 in recent weeks.

Canadians' Knowledge of Own History Shows Blank Spots

By CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

TORONTO—In a few days you will be celebrating Confederation Day—and yet if you know who the first prime minister of Canada was, you know more than half the people of Canada know.

If you know specifically what happened on the Plains of Abraham, you know more than 81 per cent of the Canadian population.

And if you don't know what city is the capital of Canada, you can take comfort in the fact that five in every 100 Canadians are in the same fix.

Perhaps you would like to try your own hand at answering these questions before you read further.

Because what a man or woman thinks is theoretically a direct result of what he knows or doesn't know, the institute from time to time shifts the emphasis of its surveys from what Canadians think, to what they know. It should, however, be stressed that, because so many people haven't encyclopaedic minds, does not necessarily mean lack of intelligence or common sense. You could tell whether a cake is good or bad, without knowing anything of cooking.

AREAS OF IGNORANCE

In its latest survey on "areas of ignorance," the Gallup Poll reporters asked a cross-section of Canadians, ranging from college professors to Canadians of little or no formal education a series of questions as follows:

"Here are a few questions we are asking everybody about Canada: Who was the first prime minister of Canada?"

"Sir John A. MacDonald" replied 51 per cent of the men interviewed, and 38 per cent of the women, for a combined national total of 45 per cent correct. Forty-eight per cent frankly admitted they didn't know and 7 per cent made a stab at it but failed.

"What happened on the Plains of Abraham?" was the next question.

Only 19 in every 100 persons interviewed gave answers which could be definitely classified as correct. Again, men did better than women, with 21 per cent correct against 16 per cent of the women.

Another 37 in every 100 gave vague answers, such as "a battle," "a war" and so on. Five in every 100 guessed—wrongly, and 39 in every 100 didn't even take a chance on guessing.

A reasonably correct answer, of course, might have been: "The English forces under Gen. Wolfe defeated the French under Gen. Montcalm on Sept. 13, 1759, thereby deciding the destiny of Canada as a British rather than a French possession" but answers less complete than this were accepted as correct by the poll's tabulators.

This quiz ended on an easier note: "What city is the capital of Canada?"

Even to this one, five in every 100 couldn't answer, or named the wrong city. There was a tendency among the "wrong" group to name their provincial capital, instead of Ottawa.

U.S. POLL THE SAME

Canadian educators who may view these figures with alarm need not conclude that Canadians are less well informed than citizens of other countries. The American Institute, for example, has found equally startling areas of ignorance among the voters in that country.

And yet modern opinion polls have shown clearly that in spite of all they don't know, the average person, collectively, shows surprisingly good judgment and common sense in expressing opinions on national and international affairs.

By PETE SALLAWAY

VICTORIA contingent of golfers entered in the P.N.W. championships at Vancouver fared badly with only two qualifying for the title flights. Frank Clarkson and Mrs. E. Jackson, both of the Uplands, proved the only island contenders capable of standing up under the firing. The former played right to his handicap by checking in with a pair of 78s, while Mrs. Jackson once again proved she is one of the finest medal players ever developed in this town by scoring an 86, just three strokes more than the medalist. Local players entered the P.N.W. without the benefit of any serious competition play in recent years. Outside of club competitions, city golf button play fellows like Gordon Verley, Bill Newcombe and Ken Lea have engaged in little tournament golf. With the return of provincial and P.N.W. tournaments no doubt this city will develop players to carry on in place of those old reliables such as Bob Morrison, Ken Lawson and Harold Brynjolfson. That trio at at their peak were a good match for any amateur in these parts.

HAVING experienced a certain amount of trouble in lining up teams to oppose crack out-of-town clubs, officials of the city ball league are making another experiment for Monday's doubleheader with Bremerton Navy Yard. The Washington nine will battle civilian and service all-star aggregations. The former club is a cinch to be practically all V.M.D. players with the Navy, Army and R.C.A.F. personnel making up the team for the second fixture. In the first exhibition games, two all-star teams were used while against the Seattle Coast Guard the V.M.D. and Navy clubs drew the assignments with bolstered line-ups. If the new scheme results in better ball clubs everybody will be happy. It's just a case of getting the best players out for such attractions.

SATURDAY will see another major horse race with the running of the $100,000 handicap at Santa Anita. Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up is certain to enter the starting gate a prohibitive favorite. Main contention for the number one choice figures to come from two horses who have established names for themselves on Mexican tracks, Gay Dalton and Bric A Brac. In tune-up races, however, the pair haven't been able to get going soon enough or have purposely been held far back. But even if their conditioners have been holding off in reserve for the 100 grand Gay Dalton and Bric A Brac will have to cut loose with everything they have to keep pace with Thumbs Up. Top weighted at 130 pounds Thumbs Up will spot Gay Dalton four pounds. He has demonstrated he can go out on the pace and carry high weight or stay back of the early foot and come on in the stretch. Gay Dalton's chance appears to be in the rating he gets from jockey Georgie Woolf who was the hero in Bymeabond's triumph in last Saturday's Derby.

RACING FANS will be able to tune in and listen to a broadcast of the California classic. However, the fact that Clem McCarthy will be at the mike to handle the description of the race will certainly not make it any the more interesting for yours truly. He may be the dean of race broadcasters but is certainly not the number one caller in my books. He has left me stranded far down the backstretch along with a goodly portion of the field too many times. McCarthy just can't keep track of the horses if there is any size of a field.

Navy Defeats Flyers

Highlighted by a pair of towering home runs over the centre-field wall, Navy defeated the R.C.A.F. 8 to 3 in last night's city league ball game. Art Amon, chunky left fielder of the Navy, punched the ball out of the lot in the fifth while Jimmy Morrison, Flyers' shortstop, duplicated the trick in the ninth.

Navy's Don Johnston came up with his second mastery mound performance of the season. Early in the schedule Johnston handed the V.M.D. its only defeat to date and last night he was again "on" as he let the airmen down with six hits, struck out two and walked seven. Johnston got a lot of support from his teammates at the plate with the sailors hitting the ball in the clutch for three runs in the first and four in the fifth. Navy came up with three extra base clouts.

Bill McDonald, the losing pitcher, dropped the decision with his two bad innings. He gave up 10 hits and just couldn't check the Navy in the first and fifth. He fanned a pair and walked three. R.C.A.F. had men on the bags in every inning, leaving 12 stranded as they failed to hit in the pinches.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

After Flyers had scored an unearned run in the first inning the Navy came back with three solid hits to account for as many runs in their half. Two singles and a wild pitch gave the sailors another run in the third and they wound up their scoring with four in the fifth. Morrison's circuit blow provided the Flyers with their final two runs in the ninth.

Poker-faced Jack Walker, Navy right fielder, had a perfect night at the plate with four for four. Morrison had three for four.

Short score follows:

	R.	H.	E.
R.C.A.F.	3	6	0
Navy	8	10	2

Batteries—McDonald and Kilburn; Johnston and Van Hatten.

SCHULTZ REJECTED

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Howie Schultz, Brooklyn Dodger first baseman, again was rejected for military service Tuesday after a pre-induction examination at Fort Snelling.

His height—six feet, seven inches—was given as the reason for his rejection, as on his several previous visits to the fort.

Sports Club Put Over Double Win In Fastball Tilts

Behind the clever two-hit pitching of Marg Hanna, Sports Club came out victors 7 to 4 over Joe Foster's in last night's women's fastball clash. It was a big night for the Sports Club as their senior B men's squad turned back Pacific Sheet Metal 15 to 6 to consolidate their hold on first place. Black and Whites won from Beavers 28 to 8 in a juvenile fixture.

The women's games produced plenty of action. Sports put together scoring sprees in the first three innings for their seven runs. Fosters put over two runs in the second and another pair in the sixth.

Errors proved costly to Fosters. In the sixth inning when things began to brighten up a bit, with two runs in and the bases loaded, Sports Club third-sacker put the opponents out of commission and stopped Fosters from capitalizing.

McCormack and Hanna slammed out three-base hits, while Heath, Eyres, Hoy and Anderson clouted doubles for the Sports Club. Pettigrew homered for Fosters. Pettigrew walked three, and gave up 10 hits, while Hanna walked one.

WIN IN NINTH

In a spectacular nine run rally in the ninth inning, the Sports Club defeated Pacific Sheet Metal. Sports-Club took the lead in the first inning with four runs featured by Burtt's homer with two aboard. Sheet Metal came back in their half with three runs on singles by Harvey, Deevey and Redder. Clubmen edged further in the lead with one run in the second.

In the fifth, the P.S.M. put over two runs to tie the score. Sports club took the lead again in the seventh when Dyer came home on a hit by R. Williams, but the metal workers evened it up again in the eighth.

In the ninth the Sports Club ran wild with seven hits and a couple of errors giving them nine runs.

Veteran Lloyd Jones was on the mound for the Sports Club with Stan Tenning hurling for the metal workers.

Ken Black Gets Scare

VANCOUVER—Favorites came through as expected as match play opened in the Pacific northwest golf championship here Tuesday, but there were a couple of close calls.

Kenny Black, Canada's amateur king, was given quite a scare by Phil Namma of Seattle before winning on the 18th hole. Black was 1 down until he fired a birdie on the 14th to square the match. On the par five 18th, both players were on in three. Black dropped his putt for a birdie, but Namma, who had been putting well all day, missed to lose the match.

Today Black wil go up against medalist Bill Welch, United States public links champion, who took the measure of Laurie McCulloch, Vancouver, 4 and 3.

Harry Givan, Seattle, 1936-37 P.N.W. champion, won from Walter Fovargue, Gray's Harbor, Wash., 3 and 2.

Another nip and tuck battle saw Joe Ahern of Portland, Oregon State champion, beat Scotty Wilson of Seattle on the 19th. New York Yanks Back In First Place Tie

Detroit has dropped out of complete dominance of the American League and is tied today with New York's Yankees for first place, all because they met up again with Washington's Dutch Leonard, the hurler who cost them the pennant last year.

Facing the Tigers for the first time since, he outpitched Dizzy Trout on the final day of the 1944 pennant causing Detroit to finish one game behind the pennant winning St. Louis Browns, Leonard maintained his pitching wizardry over the Bengals in a twilight game yesterday, by spinning a neat four-hitter to triumph 9 to 1.

The Tigers' downfall, plus the Yankees 7 to 2 victory over the Browns, brought the league leadership into a tie.

With Luis Olmo, the league's leading r.b.i. man driving in the winning run in the ninth, the fast-stepping Brooklyn Dodgers increased their national League lead over the second place St. Louis Cards to four full games by shading Chicago Cubs 6 to 5.

New York's Giants swept past Pittsburgh into third place by annexing a twin bill from the Pirates 10 to 4 and 3 to 2 to inaugurate their second home stand against the west.

Cincinnati's Vern Kennedy won his 100th major league game and Boston's batting leader Tommy Holmes hit safely in 23 consecutive games while the Reds were sweeping a doubleheader from the Braves, 5 to 4 in 10 innings and 4 to 2. The 36-year-old right-hander outpitched Mort Cooper and two successors in the opener to notch his first triumph of this year's campaign.

Seattle Rainiers Defeat Padres 4-1

San Francisco's Seals and Oakland's Acorns, battling to break the northwest's top-spot monopoly in the Coast League, were a notch closer today to the loop-leading Portland Beavers, whose 6 to 1 loss to the Sacramento Solons last night reduced their margin over the Seattle Rainiers to four games.

The third place Seals moved within seven and one-half games of the Beavers as they nosed out the Los Angeles Angels 3 to 2 for the second night in a row. Oakland also made it two straight in defeating Hollywood Stars 5 to 2 to remain in fourth place, one tilt behind San Francisco.

Seattle gained a full game on the pacemakers by beating San Diego's Padres 4 to 1.

Seattle's Carl Fischer hung up his 10th win of the year in downing San Diego, as the two teams opened their series in the California city. A doubleheader is scheduled for tonight to make up the game lost Tuesday while the clubs were traveling.

Big Coal Industry Important Factor In British Voting

LONDON (CP)—The future of Britain's lagging coal industry, subject of many parliamentary debates in recent months as wartime demands crowded supply until domestic use and exports had to be strictly regulated, is a major issue in the July general election.

It is a key sample of the differences between the Conservatives' "free enterprise" policy and the Labor Party's call for nationalization of basic industries.

Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative-dominated government, which seeks re-election, has announced a plan for government appointment of a central board to correlate modernization programs and other steps to increase production.

LEFT WING UNITED

Clement Attlee's Labor Party has promised that if it wins, the mining industry will be socialized, with government ownership and operation of all collieries. Other left-wing parties take a similar stand.

The Liberals, headed by Sir Archibald Sinclair and the third largest group in the election campaign, recommended a plan similar to that of the government but with the central commission appointed by government, management and workers rather than by the government alone.

One thing is not debatable, however: That there must be drastic changes of one kind or another if coal mining, vital to British industry which now is beginning the switchover from war to peace production, is to fill its required role in the postwar economic set-up.

4 Administrators Return to Business

OTTAWA (CP)—Return to private business of four administrators in the capital equipment and durable goods co-ordination branch of the Prices Board has been announced by board chairman Donald Gordon.

Mr. Gordon also announced that two administrations will be dissolved and their functions taken over by other divisions of the co-ordination branch which is headed by H. H. Foreman. The reorganization, he said, was designed to adapt the board's organization to changing conditions and to streamline its operations.

Turkey Worried By Russian Views On Dardanelles

ANKARA (AP)—Turkey, disturbed by reports that Russia is seeking modification of the Montreux Convention fixing the status of the Dardanelles, looked toward Britain and the United States today for a hint of their reaction.

While no concrete developments are expected before the impending Big Three meeting, it is believed in Ankara that Turkey will sound out opinion in both London and Washington in the meantime. It is expected Foreign Minister Hasan Saka may stop off in Britain for talks with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden en route home from the San Francisco Security Conference.

Few developments affecting Turkey since the start of the European war have stirred Ankara so much as the rumors which have been current for the past 48 hours. While official quarters have remained silent, it is possible to state on reliable authority:

During discussions preliminary to negotiations of a new Turkish-Russian pact of friendship and non-aggression in Moscow, the Russians raised for discussion the questions of the proprietorship of the northeastern Turkish province of Kars and the possibility of making changes in the Montreux Convention which would give the Soviet Union a favored spot with respect to control of the Dardanelles.

No demands have been made as such. The questions were interjected into the general discussions of the framework within which the new Turkish-Soviet pact will take shape.

The Turks take the view that the Montreux Convention, which has given Turkey supervision of the strait since 1936, was an internationally negotiated instrument and can be altered only through a multilateral agreement of the great powers.

LONDON—Brig. A. C. Hughes, county surveyor, has revealed that £500,000 ($2,250,000) was spent to make Hampshire roads fit to carry D-Day traffic, and the work took six months.

Gas Station Owners Ask Holiday Closing

More than 60 owners of gasoline service stations in Victoria have petitioned the City Council to pass a by-law to enforce the closing of all gasoline stations in the city on all statutory holidays, which would include Christmas Day, Boxing Day, New Year's, Good Friday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Remembrance Day and any others proclaimed a public holiday.

They request that the by-law prohibit the sale of gasoline or petroleum products on these days except as provided under the emergency service clause.

At the present time the service stations in Victoria operate from 8 in the morning until 6 in the afternoon every day in the week but Sundays.

Child Adoptions In B.C. Set Record

Adoptions in B.C. soared to an all-time high in 1944 with 303 children being formally adopted, according to the records of the Vital Statistics Bureau published in the latest annual report of the Provincial Board of Health.

In 1943, 249 children were adopted in the province while in 1942, the figure was only 157.

Largely because of necessity of registrations for dependents' allowances, the number of children who were legitimated by the bureau increased to 105 in 1944.

"All details of marriages, births, etc., are carefully checked before granting payments to dependents," said J. D. B. Scott, director, in the report, "and hence cases where natural parents of a child formerly registered as illegitimate have married, ligitimation procedures have been instituted and the birth reregistered as legitimate."

Architect to Report On Improvements To Y.M.C.A. Building

Possibility of changes to the Y.M.C.A. building is seen in the visit on July 14 of R. L. Rayburn, chief of the Y.M.C.A. architectural bureau, New York, to survey the Blanshard Street structure.

An expert on the suitability of "Y" buildings for modern programs and designer of the Vancouver Y.M.C.A., Mr. Rayburn will report his findings to a special luncheon meeting of the board of directors at the "Y."

He is expected to inform the board whether a new building is desirable, or whether the present one should be remodeled.

On a tour of the Pacific coast, Mr. Rayburn intends to visit a number of cities, including Seattle and Vancouver.

J. V. Johnson Urges Alaska Highway Link With B.C.

On his return today from the Pacific Northwest Trade Association convention at Spokane where he represented the Victoria Chamber of Commerce J. V. Johnson said that, with Kemper Freeman of Seattle, he was co-chairman of the Alaska Highway committee.

This committee, he said, unanimously passed a resolution to bring to the attention of President Truman and Prime Minister Mackenzie King the necessity of building the connecting link in the Alaska Highway through the Pacific slope west of the Rockies.

Mr. Johnson said the resolution was passed in view of President Truman's statement last week in Olympia that he was in favor of completion of the Alaska Highway to B.C. Included in the resolution was a request to the President and the Prime Minister that immediate action be taken to have an international commission composed of Canadian and American engineers appointed to study plans for the link.

He noted that Premier Hart with the United States' President and heads of government in the U.S. Pacific northwest had been commended by the association for the interest they have taken in the road.

"That highway," said Mr. Johnson, "is going to help the entire northwest. I'm sure it will mean much to Vancouver Island."

Racialism Scored At Lions Clubs Meet

"A wise radicalism now is extending the right hand of fellowship, not only to the millions of Asiatic and colored people across the highways of the world, but to the thousands in this fair Dominion, who claim Canada as their home, will be true conservatism in the days that are to be," said R. M. Millar, past president of the Vancouver Rotary Club, in an address to the luncheon meeting of the Lions Club at Spencer's dining-room today.

Speaking on "Light on the World's Darkest Problem," Mr. Millar quoted H. G. Wells, Dr. Basil Mathews and other authorities who are against race prejudice, and cited what the British people had achieved since they were savages in the days of Cicero.

He said: "The future peace of the world depends largely on the white race giving up or at least sharing many of the good things of life with the underprivileged millions of Asiatic and colored people."

After saying three great Asiatic and colored races had stood between the Anglo-Saxon people and slavery—Russia, India and China—Mr. Millar gave details of their contributions to victory and said: "These millions of Asiatic and colored peoples, along with hundreds of thousands of our own Anglo-Saxon flesh and blood—boys we knew personally from our own streets and our own homes, to whom duty was more precious than life—have been swept down in the torrential stream of sweat, blood, tears and death never to return."

Playground Program

July 9 at Willows Beach Park, Oak Bay municipality's playground program will start, it is announced by the Oak Bay playground committee. The six-week program will include three weeks at Windsor Park. Contributions to date include $250 from the municipal council, and $25 each from Willows and Monterey Parent-Teacher Associations.

A further $100 is necessary to carry out the program.

The following were elected to the playground committee: Mrs. P. J. Bennett, Mrs. H. A. Beckwith, Mrs. E. Cooper, Mrs. J. M. Gelling, Mrs. V. W. Jones, Mrs. M. J. Kirby, Mrs. G. H. Lyne, Mrs. L. Neelands, Chief H. F. C. Reston, R. M. Smith, Mrs. F. C. Pollard, Mrs. W. B. Trimble, Mrs. Frank Skillings, E. Greville-Jones and Lt.-Col. H. L. Sherwood.

Heart Disease Chief Death Cause

Diseases of the heart and arteries continued to be the chief cause of death in British Columbia during 1944 which showed a slight decrease in the death rate from 1943.

Annual report of the board of health to Provincial Secretary George S. Pearson showed the rate dropped by 0.6 per 100,000 to 10.9.

Majority of deaths in B.C. are in the age group of 60 and over. There were 6,024 deaths among men and women in this category, or 61 per cent of all the deaths in the province.

In the 40-59 age group the mortality is 20 per cent of the deaths; while in the 20-39 group the deaths comprise only 7 per cent of the total. In the 20-years and younger category only 12 per cent of the deaths occur.

Succumbing to heart and artery diseases last year were 3,231 persons. This was nearly two and a half times the number who died from cancer, which claimed 1,325 lives in 1944.

More than a five-point drop in the mortality rate of tuberculosis was shown last year. The rate dropped from 64.8 to 59.1.

Commenting on deaths of Indians, the report said that 67 per cent of the deaths were of persons under 30 years of age. Of this total, 43 per cent took place within the first five years.

In Police Court

Earl Sleen was sentenced to seven days' imprisonment by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

James W. Easton, remanded to today for sentence on a charge of possessing a revolver not registered in his name, was remanded until later today.

Roy Ross, charged with forcible entry into the home of his wife, remanded from June 21, was given a further remand to Friday.

Six motorists paid parking fines of $2.50, and a seventh was fined $5 for failing to observe a stop sign, a ninth $5 for parking by a fire hydrant and a tenth $10 for driving over 15 miles per hour on Johnson Street bridge.

1,425 War Deaths Registered in B.C.

From the start of the war to the end of 1944, deaths of 1,425 B.C. members of the armed services have been registered by the Bureau of Vital Statistics here.

In the annual report of the Board of Health, it was shown 752 deaths were registered in 1944.

Only 1% of Marriages Of Douks Registered

While the Vital Statistics Bureau estimates 80 per cent of the births and virtually all deaths of Doukhobors living in B.C. are registered the number of marriages of Doukhobors registered is only 1 per cent.

"Until Doukhobors are married in legal ceremonies it is not expected that there will be any improvement in the marriage registrations," said J. D. B. Scott, director of the bureau.

He said rationing, dependents' allowances and family allowances had improved the registration of births in the province until except for Doukhobors it was virtually 100 per cent.

Rob Jewelry Store

Smash and grab thieves broke a display window in the premises of K. A. McLeod Co. Ltd., 774 Fort Street, in the early hours of this morning and made away with jewelry valued at $50.

Constables R. Maitland and A. Bath who went to the scene, found thieves had cleaned out the display compartment with the exception of a few small pieces of jewelry. Further investigation by Detective F. Woodburn showed two ladies' lapel watches and a man's wrist watch were missing.

Birth, Deaths, Marriages Down

Slight decreases in the number of births recorded in B.C. by the vital statistics bureau were shown today in the annual report of the Provincial Board of Health. Deaths and marriages were also down but divorces hit an all-time high.

Births totaled 19,969, compared with 20,068 in 1943, the highest for 10 years. Deaths totaled 9,883 compared with 9,918 in 1943, 8,916 in 1942, and 8,617 in 1941. Marriages numbered 8,552 in 1944, compared with 9,476 in 1943 and 10,905 in 1942.

"The all-time peak in marriages occurred in 1942 and it is not expected that the figure for that year will be exceeded until the war is over or in the event of this province becoming a big base for military operations in the Pacific area," said J. D. B. Scott, director of the bureau.

Divorces in 1944 numbered 1,030, compared with 886 in 1943.

S. African Premier Visitor in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Field Marshal Smuts arrived at nearby Rockcliffe today in the Big R.A.F. Transport Command Liberator Command II and was met by high government officials and officers of the armed forces.

A smart R.C.A.F. guard of honor snapped to attention while an air force band played the general salute. The Field Marshal came stiffly to attention, returned the salute and then strode lightly across the tramac and down the ranks of the guard.

The band broke into Sarie Marais, a popular old South African folk song.

GREETED BY KING

After he had reviewed the guard the 75-year-old statesman walked forward and shook hands warmly with Prime Minister King. Mr. King then introduced the distinguished visitor to members of the cabinet, chiefs of the armed forces and diplomatic representatives of the Dominions.

At the field marshal's side was his blond, stocky son, Maj. Jan Christiaan Smuts of the South African Engineers, who had accompanied his father from San Francisco.

Prime Minister Smuts then got into a Government House motor car and, escorted by Royal Canadian mounted police on motorcycles, drove to Rideau Hall, residence of the Governor-General, where he will be the guest of the Earl of Athlone. Tonight he will be guest at an official dinner which will be followed by a reception.

Tomorrow morning he will attend a press conference and at noon, accompanied by Prime Minister King, he will visit the war memorial.

He will inspect a composite guard of honor made up of men from the navy, army and air force and afterward he will lay a wreath on the Memorial and present South African medals to Canadian army nursing sisters who served in the South African forces during this war.

MEETS OLD FOES

The field marshal then will meet his old foes—veterans of the South African War—drawn up for inspection at the base of the Memorial.

He will later attend a Canadian Club dinner in the Chateau Laurier and his speech, expected to refer to the work of the San Francisco Conference, will be broadcast over a national network of the CBC.

Friday evening he will attend a public reception at the big midtown hotel when Robert Jones, acting accredited representative for the Union, will be the host. Later he will attend a private dinner at Government House and early the next morning leave by air. His destination has not been officially disclosed, but it has been reported he will go to London before returning to Capetown.

The capital also is entertaining Viscount Cranborne, British Dominions Secretary, and on Saturday will play host to Prince Abdul Ilah, Regent of Iraq, who arrived in Toronto today.

Composer Here

Ernest Seitz of Toronto, whose song, "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," was played by full orchestra to open the United Nations Conference at San Francisco, is visiting here for three days.

A distinguished concert pianist and composer of the song, to which Gene Lockhart, motion picture actor, wrote the lyric, Mr. Seitz has played over the CBC on many occasions and appeared as soloist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

He is vice-president of the Peerless Carbon & Ribbon Co. Ltd., and A.D. Gorrie Co. Ltd., a Toronto automotive agency.

Vichy Government Interior Minister Darnand Arrested

ROME (AP) — Joseph Darnand, secretary of the interior in the Vichy regime and one of the most urgently wanted of French fugitives, was arrested three days ago by Allied intelligence agents, it was announced today.

Darnand also was secretary-general of the Vichy French militia. He was accused of some of the harshest measures against French patriots, particularly irregulars of the Maquis. His position in the rump French regime corresponded to that of Heinrich Himmler in Germany.

The arrest was made near Edolo. Darnand was hiding in a house.

A 4th Corps announcement in Milan said Darnand's secretary, Susanne Chalasse of Vichy, was arrested at a rendezvous Darnand had arranged in Milan for Wednesday.

MANY EXECUTED

Darnand was described in the announcement as one of the main French collaborators. His organization was declared responsible for uncovering Frenchmen who opposed the Germans. Many of his victims were turned over to the Germans for severe punishment or execution.

The 4th Corps said three British sergeants were responsible for the arrest, which came after their search in Drio province for remnants of the Vichy French militia.

Sgt. Andre Labbe was in a garage at Sondrio when he heard a mechanic under an automobile whistling a French song. The mechanic was a militiaman and his information sent Labbe and his two companions on a search of the Edolo area.

Feigning hunger, Sgt. William Hepburn gained admission to the house where Darnand was believed hiding. On entering, Hepburn told the occupants to surrender. Darnand then disclosed his identity.

6 More Marianas Islands Captured Without Fighting

GUAM (AP)—Firing only one shot, U.S. troops landed on six more small islands in the northern Marianas to reconnoitre possibilities of ditching spots for B-29s returning from raids on Japan.

None of the islands was occupied by the U.S. force.

The "conquest" was accomplished by one destroyer escort and two ICI's (landing craft infantry) and two platoons of negro infantry.

Neither ships nor landing forces spent a single bullet. A guide fired only one shot — a pistol cartridge expended on a Japanese who had refused to surrender.

The new Marianas Islands were acquired easily as the largest islands of the chain-Guam, Tinian and Saipan—are already firmly held by the U.S.

The six new islands are Anatahan, Sairgan, Alamagan, Agrihan, Maug and Asuncion. Maug was the only island which showed signs of Japanese military occupancy. A weather station was once maintained there, but it had been bombed out earlier in the Marianas campaign.

After studying the islands thoroughly, the troops and ships returned to their bases. Data on survival possibilities in the islands is being distributed to army and navy commands operating planes in this area.

About 24 Japanese civilians and 38 natives, mostly employees of a Japanese copra company or survivors of sunken Japanese merchant ships, were removed. The natives needed medical attention and were taken to Saipan along with some Okinawan fishermen.

Ample foodstuffs were left there for about 260 natives and Japanese civilians who remained behind.

Unions Here Urge Allowances Continue

Resolutions calling for continuing allowances for servicemen from discharge to re-establishment in full employment were endorsed Wednesday night by the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council.

The resolutions, submitted by the International Association of Machinists of Hamilton, Ont., also stressed the need of housing facilities for servicemen and their dependents and advocated that boards be set up to deal with disabilities resulting after one year from discharge.

C. Chivers outlined bottlenecks in the building industry and emphasized the need for manpower in the woods to assure an adequate supply of logs. He said more men were needed in some branches of the industry to improve the situation.

G. Wilkinson said damage to union records in the Hamley Building fire had been considerable.

Health authorities will be informed of a returned soldier and his family, who had been unable to pay the $5 deposits to secure water, while living in a Wartime Housing Ltd. home.

E. A. Balma for the Electrical Workers, William McLaughlin and George McNutt for the Shipyard Riggers and J. Jackson for the Saanich department of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association were seated as delegates.

Delegates of the council attending the liaison officers' conference of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board were instructed to request investigation of the cost of lumber.

William McLaughlin and W. Gennoe were delegated to attend a further meeting of the V.M.D. Foremen's Club.

Sir Charles Piers Soldier, Author, Dies

Body of Sir Charles Pigott Piers, author of the book "Sport and Life in British Columbia," resident of the Union Club for a number of years, who died here Wednesday, will be forwarded by the Thomson Funeral Home to Vancouver Friday.

Sir Charles was born at Liverpool in 1870 and was educated at Eton and Trinity Hall. An honorary major in the 4th Battalion Sherwood Foresters, he served in the South African War and in the Great War as a major in the 29th Battalion, C.E.F. He was general staff officer on the Canadian Corps staff.

A son, Lt.-Cmdr. Charles R. F. Piers, R.C.N.V.R., at present attached to the Royal Navy, survives.

Assets of Poland In Britain, U.S. Causing Problem

LONDON (CP) — A strong possibility that Poland's foreign assets will be frozen temporarily developed today as Great Britain and the United States prepared to withdraw recognition from the London regime and transfer it to the newly-formed Warsaw government.

A Foreign Office commentator said the situation posed "most complicated" problems, which may require Allied discussions before a solution is reached.

One problem is that the Polish merchant marine and the gold of the Bank of Poland are privately owned. Diplomats expect the Warsaw government to enter a claim for both soon.

The commentator said the question of what to do with Polish armed forces abroad still was undecided.

Roy Rogers Dubbed 'King of Winter'

Roy Rogers, whose current starring picture for Republic is "Utah," high budget musical western showing at the Dominion Theatre tomorrow, left immediately after the film was completed for Lake Placid where he was honored as King of Winter at the ice festival there.

Rogers made a guest appearance in Republic's spectacular "Lake Placid Serenade," starring Vera Hruba Ralston, and the lovely blonde Miss Ralston was invited to rule over the winter resort's festival as Queen.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Funny things happen on a Hollywood set. One humorous example is sighted in the case of Paramount's "Till We Meet Again," currently at the Capitol Theatre. Barbara Britton, co-starring with Ray Milland in this thrilling adventure story, had to play a serious scene on the edge of a narrow wooden dock over murky waters. She plays the role of a French Novice while Ray plays an American aviator. Barbara was holding a crucifix in her hand at the time when suddenly she laughed as a doughnut floated into view. Somebody had dropped part of his breakfast, apparently.

'The Way Ahead' Stars David Niven

Never has a moving picture treatment of the role of "women at war" won the acclaim that has greeted "The Way Ahead." This stirring 20th Century-Fox release starring David Niven, opens today at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres, and advance notices stamp it as one of the year's greatest.

Wherever it has played, critics and audiences have found in it their answer to demands for a "human" treatment of the civilians who fight and the women who stand behind them. "The Way Ahead" draws its stirring quality and its powerful dramatic appeal from the tremendous depth of its conception and understanding of these "little people."

With a humor and emotional impact that stamps it as famed Director Carol Reed's best, it pictures the role of these men and women who make possible every glowing headline and every thrilling story.

Penelope Ward, internationally famous actress, has the feminine lead as Mrs. Perry, lovely wife of Lieut. Jim Perry (David Niven). Though a comparative newcomer to the American screen, she is well known.

Where To Go Tonight

(As Advertised)

ATLAS—Margaret O'Brien in "Music for Millions."

CADET—"This Man's Navy," starring Noah Beery Sr.

CAPITOL — "Till We Meet Again," starring Barbara Britton.

DOMINION — "Secret Mission," with James Mason.

OAK BAY-PLAZA — "The Way Ahead," with David Niven.

RIO—Sunset Carson in "Bordertown Trail."

YORK—"The Middle Watch," starring Jack Buchanan.

Noah Beery Sr. Returns to Screen

Noah Beery Sr. again joins his brother Wallace Beery on the screen. The veteran Hollywood actor plays a major role in M-G-M's "This Man's Navy," which opens today at the Cadet Theatre, a film story of the part lighter-than-air ships are playing in the war.

Beery Sr. portrays Joe Hodum, a chief rigger at the Lakehurst, N.J., navy air base. The picture marks the third Wallace Beery starrer in which Noah has appeared during the past two years. He was also in "Salute to the Marines" and "Barbary Coast Gent."

7-Year-Old Girl Stars at Atlas

Margaret O'Brien, seven-year-old wonder actress of the screen, alone is a box-office bonanza. Add brilliant symphonic music conducted by Jose Iturbi, sure-fire laughs provoked by such tried comics as Jimmy Durante, Marie Wilson and Hugh Herbert, drama from June Allyson and Marsha Hunt in a tender story of faith and poignant love—and there is the jackpot formula of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Music for Millions," which opens today at the Atlas Theatre.

Wistful-faced, pigtailed Margaret whose extraordinary talents have endeared her to moviegoers everywhere, has the most important role of her meteoric career as a little girl of large faith who motivates the entire action of the story. It follows her successes in "The Canterville Ghost" and "Meet Me in St. Louis."

British Comedy Featured at York

"Two skirts sleepin' aboard!—there'll be 'eadaches in 'igh places" predicts the corporal of marines in "The Middle Watch," now showing at the York Theatre. The 'eadaches materialise in no uncertain manner when the admiral boards the cruiser that shelters two young charmers during a very eventful night. It is all quite innocent of course!

Jack Buchanan as the captain has the dickens of a time explaining just how innocent things are to a very crusty admiral played by Fred Emney. The admiral's turn comes later when his wife joins the party. Ian Hay and Stephen King-Hall are the authors of this enormously successful comedy which suggests that the navy sees some fun—between wars!

Greta Gynt, the girl who captivates the captain, is Norwegian and her charming ways show that Norway must be even more attractive than the travel agencies ever dreamed. "The Middle Watch" was designed to make people laugh—they will—enormously.

'Sunset' Carson New Cowboy Star

Sunset Carson, currently featured in Republic's action film, "Bordertown Trail," now at the Rio Theatre, is a champion from a family of champions.

The Texas born Carson who stands 6 ft. 3 ins. tall, won the title of champion cowboy of South America in rodeos in Argentina in 1942. His father and his uncle were rodeo stars before him, competing in innumerable events in Western shows throughout the country.

Carson, who calls Plainview, Texas, home, began his career as a top ranking cowboy almost as soon as he could sit on a horse. He won events in Texas before he reached his teens. Bulldogging, roping, bronc busting and shooting were mastered by the time he was out of school, and when he began the rodeo business seriously.

Most of Slovak's Puppets in Jail

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP)—Most of the high officials of Germany's former puppet Slovak government are in the Pilsen jail today following their delivery to the Czechoslovaks by U.S. military forces.

Among the captives are President Joseph Tiso, Premier Stephan Tiso, Education Minister Aladar Kocis, Finance Minister Nicholas Purzinsky, Economics Minister Cajza Medricky and Interior Minister Alexander Mack.

It is expected that they will be tried on a charge of collaborating with the Nazis, rather than on the more serious charge of being war criminals.

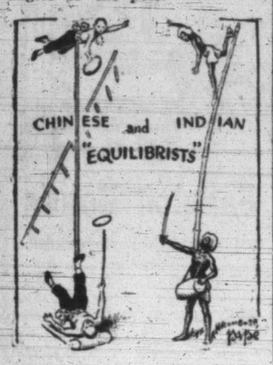
ACROBATS ARE HELD HIGH IN AIR AT ENDS OF LONG POLES

Over in India you might see a native being raised in the air while attached to one end of a long bamboo pole. The pole is 12 feet long and two or three inches thick.

The native fastens one foot in a strap near the tip of the pole. The other foot is free. As he is hoisted in the air, he keeps what we might call a "standing position,' since he is at right angles to the pole.



A friend of the native does the work of lifting the pole. At length he places the lower end on his right shoulder, and stands straight up. To add to the effect of the act, the man on the ground holds his right arm straight out, with an uplifted sword in his hand. People who watch may think that if the native fell from the top of the pole, he would be pierced by the sword. In actual fact, the man below almost surely would get the sword out of the way in case of such an accident.

In much the same manner, a Chinese may hold a friend balanced at the upper end of a long pole. The man above has no strap, but simply balances himself with the tip of the pole at his waist. The Chinese below lies on his back, and balances the lower end of the pole on one of his feet!

In time of peace, Japanese, as well as Chinese, used to perform acrobatic tricks in Europe and North America. In Europe, more than on this side of the Atlantic, the Chinese made a specialty of acting as "sword swallowers" and "fire-eaters."

Some circus clowns are former acrobats. Clowns often earn high pay, and acrobats are glad when they can change their work.

A man who was classed as an "animal clown" became popular some years ago while performing in Russia as a member of Sarrasini's circus. People in the audience would shower him with cigars and cigarettes after his act.

Two musical clowns in the circus fell into the custom of picking up many of the cigars which were meant for their comrade. In an effort to halt this custom, the animal clown put a bit of gunpowder in several cigars, near the tips. These cigars were picked up by the musical clowns. That evening one of the musical clowns gave a cigar to the father of a Russian girl whom he expected to marry. It exploded—and the marriage was off!

Unions Plan to Sue For Election Pay

Plans will be put forward to the Shipyard General Council tonight to lodge suits against the managements of Yarrows Ltd. and Victoria Machinery Depot Co. Ltd. to secure two hours' election pay if the 3,000 employees who took time off June 11 do not receive the money when paid on Friday.

Fred Bevis, secretary of the Shipyard General Council, who submitted the plans to the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council Wednesday night, winning its backing, said today he would submit the proposed action to the council tonight.

In Victoria the 3,000 shipyard workers laid down their tools at 2.30, Dominion election day, to vote. The managements, acting on the suggestion of Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, had announced that the men would be released at 4 that afternoon, half an hour before the regular closing time.

The unions had urged the men to quit at 2.30.

It had been suggested by Ottawa that the question, involving interpretation of the Dominion Elections Act, be settled in the courts.

PIN-UP GIRL
XVI

WE DIDN'T have much to read at the cottage at Dinjan, so every time we returned from Calcutta we brought back some magazines or sometimes a book or two. I don't know who it was that brought in the Jan. 17 issue of Peek, but whoever it was I love him as a brother. One of the pictures in that magazine had a profound effect on my life.

She was blonde, the girl in this picture. Blonde and blue-eyed and built like—well, like only one girl in all the world, Gerry Ewing. That was her name. She was pictured with a group of other girls who danced with her at Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe in New York They all wore little-girl costumes with short flouncey ruffled skirts, big sashes around their waists and colored bows in their hair. Gerry was sitting on the floor reading a book at a kid party, and I sat there in the lounge of our cottage on the other side of the world moaning softly to myself.

The other pilots began to gather around to see what was bothering me. When they saw that picture the wolf in them came to the surface with a chorus of low whistles, deep sighs and smacking lips. Petach in a frenzy grabbed the magazine out of my hands; Bob Robertson snatched it away from him; I leaped on Robertson, but too late. Lane had it by then, his eyes bulging as he devoured the beauty of that page. I was in agony for fear the sheet would be turn—and then Gingiss, Solomon-like, saved the day. He picked up a chair, balancing it over Skippy's head.

"Put that picture down, Brother Lane," he said. "We'll settle this thing in gentlemanly fashion, before someone gets killed."

Skippy obliged under the threat of the raised chair, and Gingiss explained his plan.

"That girl is definitely a prize, boys," Gingisss said. "She has everything — and when I say everything. But we can't all have that girl. We can't all even dream of having her. Only one of us can be that lucky. We'll draw lots, and the lucky winner will get the picture all for himself; he'll be permitted to dream about her all he wants; he may even write her a letter. In fact, I think that ought to be one of the conditions. The winner will have to write her a letter, and if she replies he'll have to read her letter aloud to all of us. He'll have to read us his letter, too, before he sends it."

I was given the privilege of drawing the first card. Gingiss shuffled them, and at least four of the wolves cut them to make sure they weren't stacked. I picked up the top card, turned it over. It was the ace of spades.

My letter to Gerry Ewing was a masterpiece in many ways, but I still don't know why she never answered it. Even to this day she has never given me a good explanation for that little bit of rudeness.

TWO OF THE boys who took part in the brief melee over Gerry's picture that night were Joe Rosbert and "Ridge" Hammel, both of Pennsylvania. Joe had been a Flying Tiger before signing on with C.N.A.C., and Ridge had only recently joined us, having transferred from Pan-American's African branch. Ridge hadn't checked out yet as a flight captain on the Himalaya run and was flying as a co-pilot, usually with Rosbert. They were scheduled to take off the morning following the discussion over the picture a half an hour after me on the run to Kunming. The weather was mean even on the ground that day; the monsoon season was well begun, and rain had been lashing the field all night. It was still pouring down as I waded through the muck from the flight office to my plane.

The first plane out every morning always took about a half-hour start on the others and radioed back information about the weather and any Jap activity noticed along the way. In view of the Zeros Petach and I had run into on the southern route the day before, I took the northern route this time, even though I realized, because of the drop in temperature overnight, that I would probaly be heading into an ice storm.

ABOUT an hour out of the base I decided to head south. The plane was so loaded with ice I couldn't get it above 17,000 feet —not high enough to go over the Hump on the northern route—so I had either to go back to Dinjan or take a chance on getting far enough south to melt off the ice.

The ice storm was moving west, apparently, because Rosbert ran into it a shorter distance out of Dinjan than I had 25 or 30 minutes before. When I told him over the phones that I was going to head south I also told him why. "If I tried to get back to the base I'd take on a double load, Joe, and I'm too heavy right now to risk it."

"Okay, Gen," Rosbert replied. "But I'm not as far out as you are. I think I'll head back and wait for it to clear up . . ."

That was the last we heard of Joe Rosbert and Ridge Hammel until 49 days later, when they came rumbling out of the jungle on a British army truck in what was probably the most remarkable return from the unknown world of Lower Tibet that any white men have ever made.

One Woman's Day . . .

By NANCY HODGES

LEGS FOR VETERANS

I NOTICED A LITTLE item, almost hidden in an eastern paper the other day, which aroused my interest.

It recorded that Hon. Richard Wood, only son of the British Ambassador to the United States and Lady Halifax, had completed his mission as a morale builder for disabled veterans and had returned to England to resume his studies at Oxford University.

Mr. Wood lost both his legs in war service and is confined to a bath chair.

But that didn't prevent his touring this continent to tell other similarly incapacitated men that they, too, can carry on. He came to Victoria early last year.

VICARIOUS LOCOMOTION

LORD HALIFAX'S son is one of those unfortunates whose high amputation—so I am told—prevent his being fitted with artificial limbs.

This proscribes his getting around under his own locomotion or even with the vicarious aid of the amazing appliances being made today for such war casualties.

Surgical science has made such rapid strides that the number of amputations is infinitesimal compared with the last war.

While the science of prosthetics has also advanced to a stage where there is no more comparison between the old "peg leg" of the Crimean War and today's artificial limb than there is between the horse and buggy and the airplane.

THOSE 'ERREY' LIMBS

A FEW MONTHS ago, 30 amputation cases were repatriated to this continent from German prison camps. Five of them were Canadian, the rest Americans.

But they all wore artificial legs made in prison by an ingenious fellow-Canadian, L.Cpl. Donovan Errey of Wallaceburg, Ont.

Taken prisoner in 1942, Errey got the idea he could help his fellow-prisoners who had lost limbs.

He confided his idea to a Scottish prisoner, who helped him scrounge the materials.

Scrap metal, rubber cloth and bits of discarded wood were obtained from the German guards in exchange for cigarettes.

At first Errey had to beat the metal out cold, until the Germans, apparently impressed by his ingenuity and generosity, gave him fuel for a small stove which he used as a forge.

CAN STILL DANCE

THE LEGS HAD a crude knee joint, as well as an ankle joint.

The feet were of hand-carved wood to fit the shoe, while there were even toe joints made from bits of an old automobile tire.

Can you imagine the intense interest with which the first of those crude appliances was tested in that prison camp?

But while the contrivances were crude, they worked. And one of the American prisoners, when landed at New York, proudly danced on his "Errey" leg to show its effectiveness.

AMERICAN PRAISE

HAPPILY, THOSE Canadian repatriates didn't have to depend for long on those temporary — though welcome — substitutes for limbs.

As with all casualties, they were immediately hospitalized, treated and trained—given every physical and moral encouragement to overcome their handicap.

Because the general public is often ill-informed as to the extent of what this Dominion is doing for the rehabilitation of disabled veterans, I am going to tell of it here.

But I am going to use the words of an American writer, who warmly lauds Canada's system for dealing with her "amp" cases.

CANADIAN METHODS

HE IS ALBERT DEUTSCH and his article appeared in the New York paper, "PM," under the heading "Legs for Vets." It reads:

"Untrammelled by deep-set traditional barriers toward progress, our neighbor to the north has swept commercial enterprise out of the limbless vets' way and has made the manufacture, fitting and supplying of artificial limbs to its veterans a complete government responsibility.

"It doesn't stop at supplying the appliances; it teaches the vet how to use them so that he can live as normal a life as possible, and it trains him for a paying job.

"Canada operates a central limb-making factory for its limbless. It employs a network of field agents—all of them disabled vets who are given comprehensive training in handling the manifold problems of limbless veterans and are paid decent salaries on the job."

INDIVIDUAL CARE

MR. DEUTSCH, who made a study of our system, then goes on:

"When it is learned that a limbless soldier is returning home from overseas, a field agent is assigned to his individual case. This agent visits the family even before the soldier returns to Canadian soil, in order to prepare it for the homecoming. He contacts his man as soon as the boat lands.

"The government agent then follows this particular vet right through his hospitalization, sees that he gets the right kind of appliance, helps him learn how to use it, aids in his job-placement and keeps in touch with him until he's thoroughly rehabilitated in his home community.

"He gets to know the man thoroughly, and the vet feels hes' being treated as an individual, not as a case number."

BETTER THAN U.S.

DISABLED VETERANS themselves, as well as their relatives, will be glad to learn that, in that writer's opinion, the Canadian casualty fares far better at the hands of the authorities than does the U.S. veteran. Here are his words:

"The limbless war veteran in the U.S.A., on the other hand, is faced not only with the encrusted inertia of the Veterans' Administration, but with even more marked inertia in the commercial limb-making industry.

"He finds, too, that while the V.A. officials are dollar-honest if somewhat obtuse to their needs, the artificial limb industry is infested with many chiselers, big and small, who regard limbless civilians and veterans alike as fair prey."

So, once again, Canadians can take pride at being in the van of rehabilitation progress.

Russia May Seek Return of Lands Ceded to Turkey

ISTANBUL (AP) — Reports that Soviet Russia is seeking advantages in the Dardanelles, and may even ask return of the Kars and Ardahan districts she ceded to Turkey in 1921, were brought into the open today by an editorial in the semi-official newspaper Aksham declaring Turkey would firmly refuse any such demands.

It was the first published Turkish comment on the reports, which had been causing a stir both here and in Ankara for several days. The Russians were said to have raised the issues during discussions in Moscow preliminary to negotiation of a new Turkish-Russian pact of friendship and non-aggression.

The Aksham said reports the Russians had brought up the question of the Dardanelles and the proprietorship of the Kars and Ardahan districts "may be considered correct."

"The Turkish government, which naturally will refuse such terms, has not considered necessary any communication on this subject to the National Assembly or the Turkish people, since the problem at present is neither definite nor decisive," the paper added.

It added that "premature excitement is unnecessary."

Grain

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat dropped 1½ and rye more than two cents from early highs today and barley was fractionally lower, but corn and oats were firm to strong.

Profit-cashing, liquidation and hedging caused the break in wheat futures.

Another factor in the selling was the Association of American Railroad's report that additional cars were being made available for grain shipments.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK (AP)—The long-expected relapse took place today on one of the largest volumes of the past two years with declines ranging from one to more than six points and the high-speed ticker tape falling behind actual floor transactions twice during the session.

Selling was blamed principally on the idea the lengthy climb to eight-year peaks had been too fast and that numerous pivotals were overbought on excess peacetime business enthusiasm. Widespread stop-loss orders were touched off on the retreat. Rumors the Federal Reserve would announce next week the boosting of margin to 100 per cent helped liquidation.

Dow Jones averages closed today as follows:

30 Industrials 166.30, off 2.48
20 Rails 60.56, off 2.31

Supervised Playgrounds Open in Parks July 4

Drama instruction will be provided for children in city playgrounds at Beacon Hill and Central Park during the summer, W. H. Warren, city parks superintendent, announced today.

Playgrounds will open July 4 under sponsorship of the Council of Social Agencies and instruction in elementary drama will be provided by two assistants of Maj. L. Bullock-Webster, B.C. government director of community drama. Emphasis will be on choral speaking and simple acting.

Robert Mines and Ursula Pottinger have been appointed supervisors. Assistants and part-time assistants will be Mary Hummel, Mrs. Bernice McDonough, Marnie Wilson and Bonnie Dymond.

Miss V. Meyers will instruct in weaving and Mrs. Rena Patenaude in paper work. Frederick Ellison will conduct weekly swimming classes for boys and girls at the Crystal Garden.

The playground hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to noon Saturdays, Mr. Warren said.

LONDON MARKET

LONDON (Reuter)—Quiet conditions again prevailed on the stock market today as traders awaited the result of the coming British general election. The undertone, however, remained steady.

Dividend announcements and company reports encouraged selective investment buying among industrials.
